Ohio River Dropping, 30,000 Homeless

FALLING TIDE ABATES ALARM IN 4 STATES

Relief Agencies Establish Shelters for Refugees in Flood Sectors.

HUNTINGTON CLEANS UP

2,000 Preparing to Return to Homes as Water Leaves West Va., City.

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—Emergency relief agencies set up temporary shelter today for an estimated 30,000 refugees routed from their homes by flood waters as forecasters studied the possible effect of rainfall over the Ohio watershed.

The threat of serious flood disaster abated today as the Ohio river flattened out from Pittsburgh to Portsmouth, O. Already lapping at lowland homes from Point Pleasant, O., to Carrollton, Ky., downriver residents prepared for the oncoming high tide.

No Serious Threat.

On the basis of a 58 to 59-foot crest from Huntington, W. Va., to Carrollton, weather forecasters at Louisville estimated the crest there at 34 to 35 feet, as against a 28-foot flood level. Serious damage does not result, however, unless the water goes beyond the 35-foot stage.

Rain was forecast for tonight in West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana. U. S. Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux of Cincinnati said it would not likely change the downward trend of the Ohio and engineers at Huntington commented a "cloudburst" would be necessary to halt the fall.

In West Virginia and Kentucky, where mountain streams covered housetops before starting to recede, the Red Cross directed its greatest rehabilitation task. Mrs. Ella Layne Brown, executive director of the Red Cross here, said agencies would care for 30,000 homeless in Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia and Ohio. Six deaths were reported as a result of the high water.

At Catlettsburg, Ky., where the Big Sandy runs into the Ohio, 350 persons abandoned their homes as water invaded the business dis-

Davey Says He Has Debts of $308,000; Net Worth $40,000.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Former Gov. Martin L. Davey asserted in a deposition hearing today, Attorney F. C. Sibley announced, that he has debts totaling $308,000 and that his net worth is $40,000.

Sibley is counsel for Lee Bradley, self-styled former political contact man for Davey and star witness at last year's senate investigation of the Davey administration. Bradley is suing Davey and General Motors Corp, for $500,000 charging malicious prosecution.

Davey caused Bradley's arrest on a perjury charge but a Cuyahoga county grand jury refused to indict.

Hints For Insomniacs

If you have tried everything from counting sheep to taking sleeping pills and get no results, here are a few "sure fire" systems guaranteed to land you straight in the arms of Morpheus. Keep your eyes directed on some bright object in the room, and soon you'll feel yourself slowly sinking into a deep, restful sleep. Another method is to do modified calesthenics such as pulling your knees alternately to your chin. (This is practically out if you're over thirty). Then some people advocate rolling your orbs back in your head until the process finally wears you out and you give up to the Sand Man. After these things have all been tried you'll probably still be awake — then we suggest reading till morning!

As Ohio River Families Evacuated Their Flood-Menaced Homes

Shown above is a scene typical of those in many Ohio river towns where flood tides sent waters surging into streets and inundating homes in lowland regions. It was estimated that the high water has made 30,000 people homeless. The river was receding today and fears of a repetition of the 1938 flood were eased. When the above photo was taken at Newport, Ky., the river was rising.

NEW JUDGE TO GET FABER CASE

Chapman, Leaving Office in Two Days, Decides Not to Preside at Hearing.

(By Staff Correspondent)

ASHLAND — Hearings of charges of embezzlement and destruction of public records against County Treasurer H. O. Faber and his son, Olen R. Faber, will be left to H. E. Culbertson when he takes office as common pleas judge Thursday, Judge C. C. Chapman announced today.

Judge Chapman's action in deferring the hearings following the filing of affidavits of prejudice against him by the Fabers.

The affidavits contend that Judge Chapman is not qualified to hear the cases on the grounds that he has repeatedly condemned the county treasurer since an investigation of alleged shortages in his accounts was launched several weeks ago.

Faber cited a lecture Judge Chapman gave in court Jan. 26 when Faber and his son were arraigned on grand jury indictments.

Judge Chapman said he would rule tomorrow on appeals filed by two bonding companies for Faber for release from their $40,000 bonding obligations. County commissioners rejected the bonding companies' application for release a month ago.

Boy, 16, to Be 'Mayor' As Scouts Run City for Day

Richard Sowash Leads 11 Nationalists to Victory In Election; Scouts Fill Offices Wednesday.

Richard Sowash, 16, of Boy Scout troop No. 2 will be "mayor" of Mansfield Wednesday as Mansfield scouts join in the observance of National Scout week, marking the 29th anniversary of the founding of the movement, by holding all city offices for a day.

Sowash, who headed the Nationalist ticket, led his party to victory in 11 of the 19 contests on which scouts balloted during the past week. Results of the voting were announced today.

Wins 3-Way Race.

The scout mayor, elected over two other candidates, polled 122 votes. His two opponents were Floyd Myers, a Federalist, of Troop 16 who received 85 votes and James Gadfield, Independent, of Troop 5, who polled 81 votes.

Seven Federalist candidates and one Independent were successful in the election.

The filling of municipal offices for a day will highlight the Mansfield observance of National Scout week which opened here today. The scout officials will be "sworn in" at 9 a. m. Wednesday.

"Mayor-Elect" Sowash, an Eagle Scout, is a member of troop No. 2 at Brinkerhoff school. He has been a scout for the past four years and served as camp leader at Camp Avery Hand for the past two years. At camp he is in charge of swimming. Sowash is a stu-

HAGUE APPEALS

Asks Supreme Court Review of Civil Liberties Ruling.

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Attorneys for Mayor Frank Hague and other officials of Jersey City, N. J., today asked the supreme court to review validity of an injunction designed to restrain them from interfering with civil liberties.

Attorneys for the American Civil Liberties union and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, which obtained the injunction in lower courts, joined in the request for the review.

A third circuit court of appeals decision affirmed the injunction issued originally by federal district court.

They contended that Jersey City ordinances regulating speech-making and distribution of literature were valid exercises of police powers. Operation of those ordinances was limited by the injunction.

Crusader Who Tried Clean-Up Here Makes News In St. Louis

Rev. Mary Ellis, 65, Philadelphia evangelist and anti-vice crusader who attempted to "clean up" Mansfield news stands three years ago, bobbed up in the news again today when she demanded the removal of a nude painting from the St. Louis art museum.

Asserting that she had never seen a nude as naked as the one in Thomas Hart Benton's painting, "Suzanna and the Elders," displayed in the St. Louis museum, Rev. Ellis joined eight St. Louis ministers in protesting showing of the art work, United Press dispatches said today.

Prosecutor G. W. Marriott recalled here today that Rev Ellis obtained a grand jury indictment against a Mansfield newsstand proprietor in March, 1935, accusing him of selling obscene magazines. The dealer was placed on probation.

Rev. Ellis went to St. Louis last week from St. Petersburg, Fla., where she had conducted a campaign to halt the sale of "sexy" magazines.

She and the eight St. Louis ministers said they were circulating a petition to have the painting removed from public display. They branded it as "lewd, obscene, immoral, and the lowest expression of pure filth."

"Suzanna and the Elders" represents an incident in the Apochrypha and the Douay version of the Bible, but Benton, whose works have been the target for moralists, transferred the story to the Ozarks in modern version.

DRIVER JAILED IN LONE MISHAP

Found Home in Bed With His Clothes on; Faces Court on Charge Tuesday.

Arrested by police who found him fully clothed in bed shortly after he allegedly struck a Mansfield businessman as he stood on the running board of his machine Saturday night, today faced charges of leaving the scene of an accident.

He is Russell L. Tappan, 219 South Mulberry street, who will be arraigned in municipal court Thursday. He was released from jail yesterday on a $200 bond posted by J. A. Geiger, of 173 Park avenue west.

The victim is Howard W. Fox, 268 Harker street, a hardware dealer, who sustained a fractured collar bone and chest injuries as he alighted from his machine on West First street, at 9 p. m. Saturday.

The accident was the lone mishap reported in Richland county over the week-end as Mansfield motorists drove into the sixth week of 1939 to protect a perfect fatality-free record Only one traffic death has occurred in the county this year.

They were reported to be riding in an automobile stolen from a 61-year-old spinster who was murdered in her home Friday night.

Police alleged that Howland killed Miss Maude Horne, a retired school teacher, took her automobile and eloped with Aida Butler, with whom, according to his mother, he had become infatuated. A warrant charging Howland with the slaying was issued Sunday.

Howland, charged with murder, allegedly beat Miss Horne to death Saturday.

ORGANIZE TO FIGHT RURAL PHONE TOLLS

Subscribers in Southern Part of County Submit Protest to Company Wednesday.

WANT CHARGE REMOVED

Farm Leaders Threaten to Form Co-operative Unless Firm Drops New Toll.

Protesting the collection of inter-exchange tolls in southern Richland county by the Mansfield Telephone company, a committee of about 15 subscribers will ask telephone officials to remove the charge at a conference here Wednesday night, Earl W Logan, Washington township, chairman of the group, said today.

Threats of organization of a co-operativve telephone company by the county farm bureau if the toll is not removed were voiced today by farm leaders who said they had petitions bearing the signatures of most of the 175 telephone subscribers effected by the toll.

Will Submit Petition.

Logan said the petition would be submitted to telephone company officials at Wednesday night's session at company headquarters in Mansfield.

The toll charge, which Logan said ranged from 10 to 20 cents in Bellville, Butler and Lexington, was added about three weeks ago following the opening of the Woodland sub-station of the telephone company which serves the southern townships of the county.

L. R Wittemire, manager of the telephone company declined to comment today on the toll and the protesting movement, but it was understood that the company had told subscribers that additional expense involved in the operation of the new Woodland station made the extra charge necessary.

The charge is 10 cents for station-to-station calls and 15 and 20 cents for person-to-person messages.

Protesting Groups.

He said members of the committee which will confer with company officials include representatives of civic organizations in Lexington, Bellville and Butler, the farm bureau, and rural telephone users.

TRIAL RESUMED

Tammany Political Secrets Bared in Hines Case.

NEW YORK —(INS)— Tammany Hall secrets were bared from the witness stand at the Hines policy racket re-trial today.

John F. Curry, former powerful leader of Tammany and a nationally known politician, took the stand as a prosecution witness and testified that his one-time friend, James J. ("Jimmy") Hines, had urged that the wigwam get behind William C. Dodge and elect him as district attorney in 1933.

Hines was, and is, leader of the Tammany 11th assembly district. He was instrumental in making Curry head of Tammany before they fell out.

It is charged by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey that the "Dutch" Schultz mob of policy racketeers paid over a large sum of money to Hines to elect Dodge. Dodge was elected district attorney.

Open Mediation With Franco To Bring War to End

Act To Stop "Needless Bloodshed" As Government Ministers, Troops Flee To French Border; Insurgents Speed To Frontier Unmolested.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons today "any threat to vital interests of France, from whatever quarter it came, must evoke the immediate co-operation of this country." His declaration followed a statement yesterday in Rome's La Voce D'Italia, that Italian troops would stay in Spain until the Generalissimo Francisco Franco's political, as well as military victory, was assured.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—Spanish insurgent authorities were reliably reported today to have informed the British government their peace terms were "unconditional surrender" of the Spanish government. This disclosure came on the heels of a report in authoritative quarters that Britain and France were attempting to mediate the war in Spain.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Britain and France were understood today to have begun new mediation efforts in Spain as insurgents in their conquest of Catalonia routed the government's disorganized army and some government ministers were reported urging surrender.

Whether British officials had been in touch with Spanish government and insurgent diplomats in London was not known, however.

British officials acknowledged that both Britain and France were "trying to stop needless bloodshed in every possible way" and said the British government was "making every possible effort to keep in touch with both sides" in the conflict.

Government resistance in Catalonia had crumbled. Twenty thousand government soldiers already were in France and 60,000 more were expected to cross the frontier. The rest of the government's Catalonian army of 200,000 had died, deserted or been taken prisoners.

President Manuel Azana and Premier Juan Negrin were in France. Azana was said to have favored suing for peace but government sources said Negrin was determined to carry on the fight in the central Spain sector still held by his troops.

Franco Troops Press On.

Week-end efforts toward peace had collapsed as Generalissimo Francisco Franco's motorized armies rolled past Figueras and Seo De Urgel in a triumphant, unresisted drive toward the French frontier.

France had opened her frontiers to the government's pursued troops as well as to a new flood of noncombatant refugees.

Franco withdrew Italian legionnaires from his forces near the French frontier.

London sources said events in Spain were changing with "such kaleidoscopic rapidity that it is not possible to discuss at this minute any action which the British government might have taken in the past week-end."

Rome press reports indicating that Italy might maintain her troops in Spain to help Franco police the nation after the war's end, drew the statement in London that officials had "no official information" that such would be the case.

The British-Italian friendship agreement calls for complete withdrawal of Italian forces from Spain at the end of the war, if not completed earlier.

FRANCE: Fleeing Loyalists Follow Leaders to French Haven

BULLETIN

PERPIGNAN, France—(AP)—Premier Juan Negrin of the Spanish government called a conference today with British and French envoys to Spain, presumably to take up mediation of the Spanish civil war.

(By International News Service)

PERPIGNAN, France—The debacle in the defense of Catalonia rapidly neared completion today as thousands of government defenders hurried across the French frontier on the heels of their cabinet ministers and the armies of Generalissimo Francisco Franco pressed on to the foothills of the Pyrenees.

France threw open two main gateways for the admission of defeated, war-weary troops who swarmed in with hungry and worn refugees and eagerly threw down their arms.

But Premier Juan Negrin and some of the key men in the cabinet, who ran a gantlet of machine gun fire and escaped into France, arranged to fly to Valencia and carry on the war in southwestern Spain. President Manuel Azana, said to have broken with Negrin

ROME: Italy's Plan To Keep Army In Spain Stirs Diplomats

(By United Press)

ROME—Intimations that the Italian army would remain in Spain until a "political" as well as military victory had been assured the nationalists, caused comment today in diplomatic quarters.

The suggestion that not military victory alone but an undefined victory in the political field was essential came as Premier Benito Mussolini prepared to preside over a meeting of the supreme defense council

It was said after Saturday night's meeting of the Fascist grand council that the Italians in Spain would not come home until the Nationalist victory was complete and "the barbaric Bolshevik oppression definitely eliminated."

Virginio Gayda, publicist, often a mouthpiece for the foreign office, took this statement a stage further with an article in the Voce D'Italia, weekly edition of the Giornale D'Italia, asserting that the Italians would remain "until the Red army and subversive influences in Spain have been completely eliminated." He said that action to "liberate" Madrid and Valencia would take a few weeks and added:

"Military victory must be flanked by political victory. Experience has shown that foreign intrigue can insert itself between one and the other Therefore Italian legionnaires will not abandon Spanish territory until it had been completely purged of Red armies and corrosive attempts of their friends."

Crowns Haven't Lost Glitter

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Did anybody tell you that popular interest in royalty is extinct and that, because of the political upheavals of the past years, crowns and coronets have almost completely lost their glitter?

Don't believe anything of the sort!

In England, where there now flourishes a particularly charming group of royal ladies, the sight of a princess, whether coroneted or tam-o'-shantered, is an utterly ravishing spectacle for the plain men and women.

Even here, in our own democratic country, we're all on anticipatory tiptoe at the thought that the young and lovely queen of the greatest empire is coming to pay us a visit, actually to be seen by thousands of us. The arrival of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth at the White House is really going to upset the American home.

Will there be an American woman anywhere who won't be eager to see what a queen-empress looks like, to find out what she says and does and wears? Just as we once believed in fairies, we now want desperately to believe that there's an unearthly fascination in the look of a queen. Surely, she can't be merely a happy and fortunate young matron with everyday human qualities, like the rest of us. We simply won't believe it.

Tomorrow's Problem.

After a bid of 1-Spade by South and a double by West here, what would you do in the North?

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

His long stare, I know, was meant to abash me, but I did not drop my eyes; instead, I continued to look at him with as artless an air as I could manage.

"It is not my practice to interrupt persons who are giving me information," he said. "Please proceed."

"There is one mental process of mine which you have yet to learn, Mr. Veritzen," I began smoothly, but at something inscrutable which leaped into his eyes and quickly faded again, I made a quick amendment.

"Of course there are others which you do not know," I said. "I do not flatter myself that you have given any particular thought to studying me—"

"You know that is not true," he interrupted, and I caught back a chuckle at the incurable theatrical romanticism of the great man.

"You promised not to interrupt," I said with archly lifted forefinger, and then swept on swiftly, lest I tempt Fate too far.

"But this particular phobia of mine is a positive fixation," I said. "I simply cannot endure being given a command without reason, as if I were a child."

"If you had given any reason for your wishing us to stay in, and couched your command in the form of a request, I should have been happy to comply with your wishes," I said slowly. "But as it was repeated to us, it was simply a peremptory command for us to stay in the hotel until five o'clock, the hour when you expected to arrive, a command given immediately after you had canceled your telephone command to me, most palpably because you were displeased that I waited to take your call in the rooms here instead of talking to you in the manager's office.

I paused, and he looked at me steadily.

"Is that all?" he asked.

"Not quite," I answered. "I must tell you, even at the risk of deeply offending you, that your attitude toward your daughter-in-law is not conducive to her peace of mind or her ability to do her best of work. I am not afraid of you, nor do you make me nervous, but she stands in awe of you, and you upset her terribly when she thinks you disapprove of anything she has done."

"No," he said slowly. "You are not afraid of me. I learned that long ago."

Why I suddenly should flush violently, and drop my eyes before his piercing gaze, I did not know, but flush I did, and was furiously angry at myself for the weakness. And then, to add to my discomfort, Philip Veritzen laughed, sardonically, it is true, but softly.

"I think that makes us even," he said, meaningly.

Sweets For Valentine Gifts

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

"Sweets" succeed in touching the hearts of most of us at some time—and doubly so on St. Valentine's day! If you want the table to say "be my Valentine," make the festive dishes "hearty" in name only, for it's light eating that delights most of us on this sentimental day of the patron saint of true lovers. Heap candies, stuffed dates, cookies and nuts in heart-shaped containers for the table, and in heart-shaped boxes for souvenirs. Shape your cakes and even the ice cream that way, too! No love's labor will be lost!

Grapefruit Cake requires two and one-half cups sifted cake flour, two teaspoons baking powder, three eggs, grated rind one-half grapefruit, one-half cup grapefruit juice, one-quarter teaspoon salt, two-thirds cup butter, one and one-half cups sugar. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Add rind to butter and cream together. Add sugar gradually, and cream together until soft and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Add flour, alternately with the grapefruit juice, a little at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Bake in greased layer cake pans in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for twenty minutes.

Frosting Recipe.

Grapefruit Butter Frosting is spread between layers and on top. To make frosting, combine grated rind of one-half grapefruit, yolk of an egg, three tablespoons butter, juice of one-half grapefruit, three cups of sifted confectioners' sugar, and beat all ingredients until smooth.

An extra rich and delicate ice cream should have pride of place on a Valentine day menu. So, ladies, we suggest that you serve Coffee Caramel Ice Cream if you want to receive sweet compliments! Recipe requires two-thirds cup sweetened condensed milk, caramelized, one-half cup double strength coffee, one and one-half teaspoons vanilla and one cup heavy cream. Immerse can of sweetened condensed milk in pan of water and boil for three hours. Cool and measure. Add hot coffee and vanilla. Blend, using rotary beater or electric mixer; chill. Fold in whipped cream. Pour into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator, and freeze quickly until firm. Remove to chilled bowl and beat until light and smooth. Return immediately to refrigerator and finish freezing.

Sweet Souvenir.

A heart-shaped box of stuffed dates is a sweet souvenir. When the dates are stuffed, leave a little of the filling visible. Sugar the dates after stuffing by putting three tablespoons of granulated sugar in a paper bag and shaking a few dates at a time in the bag until well coated. A teaspoon of cocoa or a little cinnamon may be added to the sugar.

Orange Fondant makes a nice stuffing. Cream two tablespoons butter; stir in gradually one cup confectioners' sugar, one egg yolk, grated rind of an orange. If the fondant is too thick, add a little orange juice. Marshmallow Cocoanut stuffing is made with four ounces of marshmallows cut into quarters with wet scissors. Stuff each date with piece of marshmallow, placing cut side up. Dip the sticky surface of the marshmallow into shredded cocoanut.

To clean a soiled felt hat rub it with a very fine grade of sandpaper.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

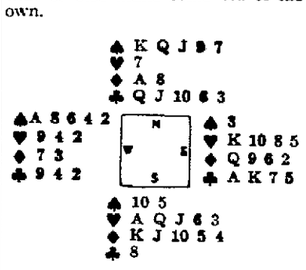
BY Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

LEAVE THAT DOUBLE IN

YOU REALLY SHOULD take out some business doubles made by your partner. But not, as a rule, if you have a hand which is as good defensively as you have so far shown and he has doubled vulnerable opponents when your side is not vulnerable.

In that situation, even if the intervening opponent takes out the double into another suit which you cannot double yourself, it is usually your job to pass and put it up to your partner to double that or else make some bid of his own.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable).

East began the bidding here with 1-Club, South bid 1-Heart and West 1-Spade. That bid would have been all right if South had passed, because then West would have had the responsibility of keeping it open with any hand which might produce game if his partner had almost a two bid. But in this case, South had performed the function of keeping it open, so West should not have made a free bid unless he had something worth while to show.

That 1-Spade call should have been badly penalized. North of course doubled it. When East bid 2-Clubs, South should have passed, to give North a chance to double that. Had he done so, it would have been set much more than a not-vulnerable game was worth.

South erred badly, however. Over the 2-Clubs, he showed his second suit with 2-Diamonds. With the opponents now shaken off the limb onto which they had climbed with West's bad bid, they were pleased to pass thereafter, as North then went to 2-No trump, South 3-Diamonds and North 3-No trump, a cinch contract but sad in comparison to the luscious double that had been in sight.

Uplift Exercise For Chest

By MME. QUI VIVE

With strapless evening gowns, and the decolletage cut lower than it has been since grandma was a girl, the chest of the average femme does not qualify. Like the ambrosial tresses it is ready for an uplift. The fuller the chest, the trimmer the waist will appear to be.

Some of the simplest exercises will prove successful in filling out the lung box. No need of tiring yourself. Just keep everlastingly at them. Day by day, ten minutes at a session. Form the habit of pulling in your tummy fibers. Pack them against your backbone. You can't do that without a certain amount of chest expansion.

Sit in a straight backed chair and swim in the air. Place your hands, palms downward, fingers outward, between the breasts. Do the breast stroke. Send the hands straight out in front. Then straight out at the sides. Back to firm base. Always with a husky muscle tug.

Stand before an open window, hands doubled on the chest. Take a deep breath, extend the hands out straight in front on a level with the chest. Hold them there and exhale through the lips. Back to first position. Inhale through the nostrils, lift the hands above the head, exhale as they descend.

The habit of deep breathing will prove beneficial not only to the silhouette, but to the complexion. We can't say enough about the grand results of pumping ozone into one's bellows. Draw the air deep down, tense the abdominal muscles inward and upward. See what happens to your chest. It gets very proud of itself, being expanded and robust. Do enough deep breathing and it will stay that way.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Feb. 7.

According to the lunar transits this may be a day of fair activities as far as business is concerned, with much of a progressive and promising nature transpiring. Yet, the emphasis may be placed upon the domestic, emotional, social and artistic life, where there may be much stirring to bring gratification and happiness. At the same time there may be some sort of disagreeable or inharmonious complication unless great tact be exercised.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a promising year in which definite progress may be made in business. It is especially propitious if such business be connected with domestic, social, artistic or general feminine interests or advancement. Affairs of the opposite sex are paramount, with forecast of much happiness. There also is a menace of inharmonious contact or adventure.

A child born on this day may be exceptionally talented in all manner of cultural pursuits—musical, artistic and literary. But it may need some assistance in enhancing that versatility by system and application.

THEATERS

THE Hedy Lamarr-Spencer Tracy film, "I Take This Woman," is to be shelved after weeks of work on it. Probably because someone discovered that you have to have at least the semblance of a story, as well as stars. Lamarr starts immediately in a picture with Robert Taylor and Spencer goes over to the "Stanley and Livingston" set. . . . There will be at least two real Southerners in the cast of "Gone With the Wind." Fred Crane of New Orleans, a Tulane university man, and George Bessolo, native of Ashland, Ky., will play the red-headed Tarleton twins.

Pulitzer Prize Play.

Robert Sherwood's Pulitzer prize-winning play, "Idiot's Delight," with Clark Gable and Norma Shearer in the leading roles, graces the screen at the Ohio this week. The original story remains almost as it was on the stage: A hoofer and a vaudeville girl meet in Omaha, where they fall in love. The girl is ambitious and presently finds herself in Europe as a phony Russian countess. Gable, the hoofer, meets and recognizes her. The climax comes when they are trapped in a small town as planes drop bombs, one of which hits the hotel where they are staying. Others in the cast include Edward Arnold, Charles Coburn, Burgess Meredith and Skeets Gallagher.

Suspense Is Maintained.

In the matter of prison brutality, "Devil's Island" begins where "Fugitive From A Chain Gang" left off. In fact, the latter looks slightly sissy when compared with the brutality and stark drama of the more recent picture which revolves around the French penal colony. There are really two climaxes in this film at the Madison, one when Boris Karloff, as the prisoner, escapes, and again when he stands on the guillotine on the island. The backgrounds are said to be authentic reproductions of the infamous island prison.

Introducing Priscilla.

On the Majestic bill for the midweek is the picture which first introduced Priscilla Lane to movie audiences. It is "Varsity Show," with Dick Powell and Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians. At that time the pretty Lane sisters, Priscilla and Rosemary were singing stars of the Waring show. That picture marked their Hollywood debut and they have never left it. "Varsity Show" is a football story, of course. Concurrently with the film, the Majestic will present Bette Davis in "That Certain Woman," with Ian Hunter and Henry Fonda.

Mysterious Woman.

A story revolving around two stranded actors, a murder in the room next to them and a queer chain of circumstance which points to one of the actors as a Scotland Yard man, is told in "The Mysterious Miss X," one of the Park theater attractions. Michael Whalen and Chick Chandler are the two men and Mabel Holl and Mary Hart are the girls. "Mother Carey's Chickens" with Ruby Keeler, Anne Shirley and James Ellison is the second feature.

Clogs Romance Machinery.

Lew Ayers, as Cousin Henry in "Rich Man, Poor Girl," throws a lot of monkey wrenches into the romance of Robert Young and Ruth Hussey when the young millionaire asks his secretary to marry him. Cousin Henry, a champion of the Middle Classes, figures that no good could come of it. Besides this entertaining romantic comedy, there is "That Certain Age" on the Ritz bill, with Deanna Durbin, Melvyn Douglas, John Halliday, Irene Rich and Jackie Cooper.

..FOODS New Ideas for an Old Art RECIPES...

Variations On Basic Cake Recipe

By IRENE OBERLIN
(Home Service Department, Ohio Public Service Company)

Recipe for a basic cake:
- ⅓ cup butter or other shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 2 cups flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon flavoring extract

Cream butter. Add sugar gradually, cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg, beating thoroughly. Sift flour and measure. Mix and sift with baking powder and salt. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with the milk. Add flavoring and mix into a smooth batter. Pour batter into greased, paper-lined shallow baking pan. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 30 minutes.

Variations.

Remove basic cake from pan and cool. Cut with various shaped cutters. Make Seven Minute Frosting and divide into thirds. Add different fruit coloring to each and frost cakes. Decorate with nut meats, tiny candies, candied cherries and citron.

Apple Cake.

Pour basic cake batter into greased 9"x9" pan. Arrange very thin slices of tart cooking apples over top. Sprinkle lightly with sugar (about two tablespoons). Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Cut in squares and serve hot with caramel sauce.

Spice Cake.

Add 1 teaspoon mixed spices to flour, baking powder and salt and sift together three times. Add to creamed mixture as in basic cake and bake as directed.

Nut Fingers.
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 2 cups confectioners' sugar
- 1 egg white
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 3 tablespoons boiling water
- 1 cup finely chopped nut meats

Cream butter. Add sugar gradually. Add very stiffly beaten egg white. Mix into a very stiff paste; add flavoring and boiling water. Make into a thin paste, about the consistency of buttermilk. Spread lightly on the cuts of cake and roll in the chopped nut meats.

Buttercups.

To make Buttercups, trim crusts from slices of white bread. Butter both sides of each slice lightly. Then press each slice into a muffin cup and toast in a moderate oven (375°F.) until the tips are golden brown. Fill with creamed shrimp, chicken a la king, or other creamy mixture.

Sweet Dough Foundation.
- 2 cakes compressed yeast
- ¼ cup lukewarm water
- 1 cup milk
- ¼ cup butter
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 5 cups flour (about)

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add butter, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add flour to make a thick batter. Add yeast and eggs. Beat well. Add enough flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Place in greased bowl, cover and let rise until double in bulk (about 2 hours). When light, punch down, shape into tea ring, rolls or coffee cakes. Yield: 2 12-inch tea rings.

Honey Twist.

When Sweet Dough is light, form into a long roll about 1 inch in diameter. Coil the roll into a greased cake pan, beginning at the outside edge and covering the bottom. Brush with Honey Topping. Let rise until double in bulk and bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 25 to 30 minutes. To make Honey Topping cream together ⅓ cup butter, ⅔ cup confectioners' sugar, 1 egg white and 2 tablespoons honey, warmed. Brush over Twist before baking. (If you like lots of topping double the recipe).

Swedish Tea Ring.

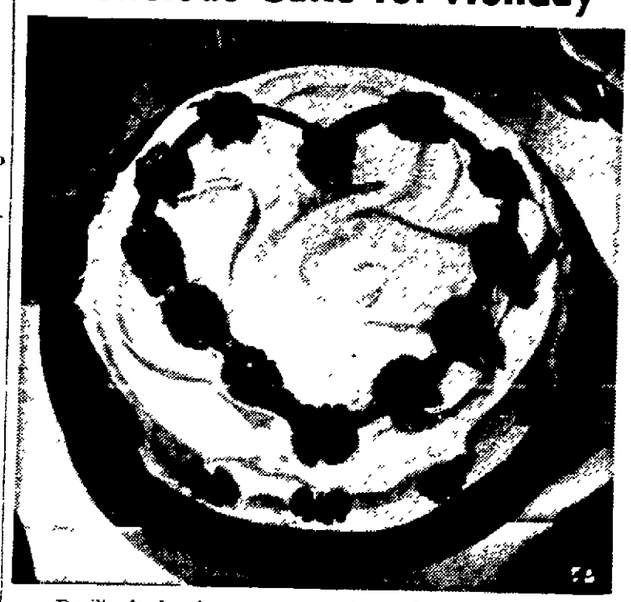
When Sweet Dough is light, roll into rectangular sheet about ½ inch thick. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon. Roll jelly roll fashion and shape into a ring. Place on greased baking sheet and cut with scissors at 1-inch intervals almost through ring. Turn each slice slightly on its side. Cover and let rise until doubled. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 25 to 30 minutes. While warm, frost with confectioners' sugar and sprinkle with chopped nut meats.

Almond Coffee Puffs.
- 1 cake compressed yeast
- ¼ cup lukewarm water
- ½ cup milk
- ¼ cup shortening
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 -2½ cups flour
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup almonds blanched and chopped

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add shortening, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add flour, beating thoroughly. Add softened yeast and then unbeaten eggs, one at a time. Beat until mixture is smooth. Cover and let rise until double in bulk (about 1 hour). Stir down and add ½ cup chopped almonds. Fill greased muffin pans ½ full. Sprinkle with remaining almonds which have been mixed with 4 tablespoons of sugar. Cover and let rise until doubled (about 30 minutes). Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Yield: 2 dozen 2-inch puffs. (Pecans may be substituted for the almonds).

Mushrooms and oysters blend nicely in a savory cream sauce. Serve them escalloped, or as sauce for ham, rice cheese or tuna loaves.

Delicious Cake for Holiday



Devil's food cake, encrusted with white icing, becomes a Valentine centerpiece with a heart outlined in walnut meats and red frosting. One-third cup shortening, 1¼ cups brown sugar, 2 eggs, beaten, ½ cup boiling water, 2 squares (2 ozs.) unsweetened cooking chocolate, 1½ cups sifted cake or pastry flour, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup finely chopped walnut kernels, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract, ½ cup sour milk or buttermilk. Cream shortening thoroughly. Add the sugar gradually and cream the mixture until light and fluffy. Add the beaten eggs and beat well. Meanwhile, pour the boiling water over the chocolate. Stir over low heat until smooth and thick. Cook. Add to the egg mixture, mixing thoroughly. Sift the flour, soda, baking powder and salt together. Add walnut kernels. Combine the milk and the vanilla and add alternately with the dry ingredients to the chocolate mixture, beating after each addition until smooth. Turn into a well-greased and lightly-floured loaf pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.).

Care Should Be Exercised In Selecting Cuts of Beef

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

One of the things America can thank old England for is its liking for roast beef, the aristocrat of meats.

You can't go wrong, when your budget permits, if you serve a juicy rib roast.

One of the best ways of getting a good roast is to patronize a reliable butcher. There are certain tests you can apply in picking the cut of meat, but they're not conclusive. Tender beef usually is well streaked with clear, cream-colored fat, the flesh is firm to the touch, smooth, fine-grained and glossy.

Freshly cut beef is bright red. When it has been hung—exposed to the air—the meat darkens. Many people who fancy themselves as epicures spurn the freshly cut beef. They say it's not worth eating until the meat is dark. With some it has to be quite dark, too.

Note the Weight.

Two or three ribs will be enough to serve the average family, four or five for a larger group. Some people like to serve a standing roast—one that is cooked with the bones in it. But if the butcher removes the ribs you get a rolled roast—the meat is tightly rolled and held together with cords or skewers.

It is wise to note the weight of the roast when you buy it. That will help in the cooking. To bring out the flavor of a standing roast, proceed this way:

Wipe the roast with a damp cloth, then rub it well with salt, pepper and flour. For a three-rib piece these are the proportions: a teaspoon of salt, half a teaspoon of pepper and two tablespoons of flour. Put the roast, fat side up, on a rack that's raised a quarter of an inch from the bottom of the roasting pan.

Turn the oven on hot (500 degrees) for the first 20 minutes of cooking; that will sear it. Then lower the heat to 300 degrees and cook according to this scale: 16 minutes a pound, if you like your meat rare; 22 minutes a pound for medium, and 30 minutes a pound for well done.

You should not cover the pan, the fat not only seasons the roast, but also keeps it moist while cooking. Baste the meat every 15 minutes or so with the drippings.

A rolled roast is cooked in much the same way. But since it doesn't have quite so much fat you'd better put half a cup of water in the roasting pan. And since the rolled roast is thicker than a standing one, add five minutes to the cooking time in each of the classifications just given.

When your roast is done, lift it off the pan. Pour out of the pan all but four tablespoons of fat and then make your brown gravy in the pan in this manner: Sprinkle in four tablespoons of flour and mix well, add two cups of boiling water and a little salt and pepper and boil the mixture on top of the stove, stirring it frequently.

Yorkshire Pudding.

Before starting the gravy, be sure to remove from the pan any little burned particles of flour; they would darken the gravy—might even give it a bitter taste. If the pan is too brown, it's better to make your gravy in a separate receptacle.

If you like your beef the real English way, you'll serve yorkshire pudding with it. Here's a good recipe.

Mix a cup each of flour and milk, two eggs and a fourth of a teaspoon of salt. Pour to a thickness of one inch in a shallow pan generously greased with drippings from roast. Bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven, basting three times with drippings. Cut into squares and arrange them around the roast on the serving platter.

To take the guesswork out of roast cooking, use one of those special roast-meat thermometers. Make an incision so that the bulb reaches the center of the roast and cook until it reads 140 degrees for rare, 160 for medium and 180 for well done.

However, with little practice you can do your beef to a turn without a thermometer.

New Flavor

For something new in flavor combinations try this: Brown six lamb, veal or pork chops and cook until a little tender. Then spread with half a cup of crushed pineapple mixed with two tablespoons of lemon juice, three tablespoons of brown sugar and a teaspoon of cinnamon. Cover tightly and cook slowly fifteen minutes. Carefully remove to serving platter so the topping will not come off.

Here is a dandy sandwich filling suitable for party or family. Mix equal portions of grated cheese and hard boiled eggs, season lightly with minced parsley, onions and celery. Moisten with catsup or chili sauce and spread on Graham or white bread sandwich slices.

Sandwiches For Valentine Parties

Say it with hearts, at that Valentine party for the young folks. Write the invitations on red hearts, or use Valentines. Dress up the house with gay strings of hearts in different sizes, match cut-out hearts for refreshment partners and serve the foods in as many heart versions as possible.

Young people like sandwiches and sandwiches are ample as refreshments when served with steaming chocolate, topped with a froth of whipped cream.

Since the guests will like their sandwiches dainty and unusual here are some suggestions:

1. Mix chopped cooked ham with diced pickles, minced lettuce and salad dressing and use as filling for white bread slices. Cut into heart shapes.
2. Blend chopped dates and figs with nuts and cream and spread on buttered Graham bread. Make into sandwiches and cut into thin strips. Stand the strips in red heart candy box.
3. Spread thin buttered slices of white bread with cream cheese mixed with chopped pimiento-stuffed olives and salad dressing. Roll each slice and tie it with red ribbon. Tuck these rolls in with other sandwiches placed in basket.
4. Serve an array of open-faced sandwiches. Cut hearts from slices of white, brown and Graham bread. Spread with butter and any strips of green peppers, hearts cut from pimientos and cooked beets, minced parsley, cress, nut halves and sliced olives and pickles.

It's Worth Extra Trouble.

Young folks often are inclined to be fastidious, so it pays to go to a little extra trouble with their parties.

A dainty Valentine bouquet salad is intriguing and adds glamour to any serving table. Mold raspberry, cherry, strawberry, mint and grape gelatin combinations in small round cups. Unmold them bouquet fashion on a large tray. Cut leaves from green gelatin sheets. Touch up with cress or strips of lettuce. Let the guests help themselves to the salad and also to dressing placed in a bowl concealed in a red heart.

Here's an ice cream and cake surprise. Cut out hearts from thin layers of white cake. Remove centers and fill with cherry or strawberry ice cream. Cover with thin marshmallow sauce and pep up with red cinnamon flavored cream hearts.

For another surprise try this. Fasten together upright with frosting, three pink frosted sugar cookies. This forms a case which is ready to hold peppermint, raspberry or cherry ice cream. Shower the tops with tin red or pink hearts.

The Table's Heart.

Let your Valentine cake be the heart of the table appointments.

For a high effect, arrange three hearts in tiers on a serving platter. Frost in pink and decorate in white or cover all the hearts with white icing and decorate it with red candy or frosting hearts.

Or this cake idea may appeal to you: Bake white cake in a large round pan. Cover generously with white icing. Set it off with festoons of tiny cooky hearts dipped in red fondant.

Raspberry sherbet, strawberry ice cream or special Valentine molds make tempting partners for any of these cakes.

If your sheets do not carry index tabs showing the size, make up some of your own. Write size of sheet on tape with indelible ink and sew on one edge of sheet. This will save time as you can quickly find the right sized sheet for your bed.

Charge Irish Plotted to 'Blow British From Ireland'

'YARD' KEEPS CLOSE WATCH OVER PALACE

London Accuses 12 of Scheme to Cause More Explosions; Find 'Secret Plans.'

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Allegations that the outlawed Irish republican army had formed a plan to blast the British out of Ireland were made in the Bow street police court today as Scotland Yard guarded the British royal family, high officials and public buildings against bomb outrages.

At the trial of 12 men accused to conspiring to cause explosions, the prosecuting attorney spoke of a mysterious "aluminum powder," a new arrest of "considerable importance," and a plan, designated as "X" and described as "most comprehensive and covering every field of public activity."

The attorney said the plans were discovered in a search of the home of Michael O'Shea and read:

"In order to exercise a maximum world effect, the diversion (presumably bombings) must be carried out at a time when no major or world crisis is on, but if it is carried on when trouble is anticipated, with the humpiness and nervous expectation of the government as well as the nervous potential panic of the people, it can be exploited to the full."

Given 4-Day Ultimatum.

The alleged plan gave details of a four-day ultimatum sent Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax on Jan. 13, four days before three explosions occurred in various parts of the country.

The ultimatum, which referred to the "government of the Irish republic," threatened active intervention in Britain's "military or commercial life" unless Brtiish forces were withdrawn from Eire (Ireland.)

Extra guards were thrown about the royal residences of Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle, which ordinarily are carefully watched. Everyone entering the grounds had to present credentials to high Scotland Yard officials.

King George VI and Queen Elizabeth were whisked along at a mile-a-minute speed with police cars ahead and behind when they drove 12 miles from Windsor to Aldershot to church yesterday. Police in cars and afoot were stationed every 20 or 30 yards along the route.

Some 30 suspected persons were under arrest. Police were on emergency duty. Terrorists, nevertheless, continued to slip through with their bombs. Incendiary bombs, believed to have been placed by women, were set off in four stores in Coventry.

Scotland Yard officials attribute the wave of bombings in England to extremists of the king-hating outlawed Irish republican army.

"Thrilled, but also slightly nervous," Evelyn Jocha, 18-year-old Mansfield bowling star, admitted after being crowned the women's champion of The News-Journal Individual Sweepstakes at the Meder alleys Sunday. And the first prize will not be spent in celebration of the victory, she said. It will go into a bank for her college education. One of the city's outstanding feminine athletes, Evelyn plans to major in physical education at Bowling Green college.

Hank, a Dachshund puppy, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Balyeat, jr., 32 Rowland avenue, has been attracting attention in the neighborhood the past few days because of a tag fastened on his collar. It reads: "Please do not feed me. I have come home sick every night. Fats and starches are not good for little puppies." At least one person who has been feeding Hank heeded the request, and on the opposite side of the tag he wrote, "Okay Bud."

There's a tricky display in the show window of the Colby & Earick garage on West Third street. Within a circle painted on the window is a white spot, and by placing your hand over the spot, a floodlight inside the window goes on and lights up the car on display. When your hand is withdrawn the light is disconnected. It operates like an "electric eye." the shadow of your hand making the connection inside the window.

Mrs. Harry Robke, address unknown, who "passed through" Mansfield Sunday night, will remember the city with gratitude for many a day. Her husband called Mansfield police station from Findlay at 10:30 p. m. yesterday and informed police that his wife had left her wedding ring and diamond engagement ring in the wash room of a Gulf filling station somewhere on Route 30. The station was closed when police called last night, so they went back early this morning, and James Campbell, the attendant, was holding the rings until the owner called for them. The Robkes were notified and will stop here on their return trip.

CHECK MURDER

Police Find Victim Clubbed, Asphixiated in Home.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Police studied a possibility today that the slayers of Willard H. Armstrong, 38, a railroad accountant who was found trussed and asphixiated at his apartment home, may have faked a robbery to hide their motive for the killing.

Trussed and then tied to a bizarre mechanism which forced him to breathe gas fumes, Armstrong was found dead late yesterday as his wife, Jessie, returned from a visit. Coroner Frank M. Coppock, jr., said tentatively it was a case of murder for robbery.

Coppock said Armstrong was clubbed and his hands and feet tied. Then his head was inserted into a heavy paper bag which connected with the kitchen stove by a rubber tube. Mrs. Armstrong said gas fumes penetrated the home when she arrived from a visit with parents in Indianapolis, indicating her husband had been dead several hours.

HOUSE GROUP BACKS PERKINS

Move to Drop Impeachment Action Gains Impetus in House Committee.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Early dismissal of impeachment charges against Secretary of Labor Perkins was sought today by a militant group in the house judiciary committee.

With Secretary Perkins slated to tell her story in person tomorrow, efforts are expected to be redoubled to force a showdown in the committee within a week.

Another faction, however, not only is seeking additional evidence on the charges of Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R) of New Jersey, but wants to await the supreme court's decision in the much-debated Strecker case.

Reps. Murdock (D) of Utah and Massingale (D) of Oklahoma, it was revealed by committee members, told their colleagues in secret session that they are ready to vote to clear Miss Perkins.

The two members, with other support, was authoritatively said to be urging an early showdown on the ground that it is unfair to Miss Perkins to keep the impeachment charges hanging over her record.

Rep. Guyer (R) of Kansas, however, planned to demand that Chairman Martin Dies (D) of Texas, of the house un-American activities committee, be invited to appear and discuss evidence given that committee relating to suspension of deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, west coast CIO leader.

'RIPPER BILLS' IN SPOTLIGHT AS ASSEMBLY PUTS ON SPEED

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS—(UP)—A "ripper" bill to abolish the present Ohio parole board and substitute a five-member board will be introduced in the legislature tonight, State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood said.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Under the direction of Sen. Frank E. Whittemore (R-Akron) and J. Harry McGregor (R-Coshocton) senate and house floor leaders, the legislative machine will move into high gear this week with "ripper" bills holding the center of attention.

Only two major issues have been passed by the 93rd general assembly since it convened Jan. 1. They were the $5,000,000 six months relief bill and the partial appropriations bill which set aside $43,000,000 for governmental operation until July 1.

Still pending were the important school funding measures, proposals to re-organize at least four state departments and the biennium budget bill.

First of the school measures went into the house hopper last week, a bill by McGregor which would allocate $12,600,000 to public schools for the first quarter of 1939.

The administration is preparing legislation to retire school obligations and pay the interest on school notes. This bill, primarily designed to help wipe out the $17,000,000 school deficit, may be ready for consideration by the house this week.

The senate commerce and labor committee was expected to send the unemployment compensation commission "ripper" bill to the senate for passage tonight after a hearing. The measure proposes setting up a three-member board of review and an administrator. The present three-member commission would be abolished.

A bill re-organizing the civil service commission has been introduced in the house, but no action has been taken on it. Meanwhile, administration forces were preparing a bill to make over the parole board, while Whittemore worked on another which would break up the present tax commission.

Corwin of the First M. E. church officiating. Burial was in the Windsor cemetery.

The child suffered severe burns on his face, arms and legs when he poured gasoline on a fire in a kitchen stove early Saturday morning.

The mother, who was in another room at the time of the explosion, suffered burns on her hands when she wrapped the boy in a blanket to suffocate the flames.

The boy was rushed to the General hospital by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perry, who live nearby. He died six hours later. A sister, Sue at home, is among the survivors.

LEADERS SAY REBUFF LOOMS FOR ROOSEVELT

Nomination of U. S. Judge in Virginia 'Doomed'; Amlie Called to Testify.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Thomas E. Amlie, former progressive congressman from Wisconsin, nominated by president to be a member of the interstate commerce commission, today branded as "ridiculous" charges that he is a communist.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Two presidential appointments which have aroused furious controversies reached new stages of senatorial argument today, with prospects of at least one rebuff to the administration.

A senate subcommittee called Rep. Thomas R. Amlie of Wisconsin before it to inquire about his qualifications for membership on the interstate commerce commission, to which President Roosevelt nominated him.

Committeemen were interested in learning whether Amlie's economic views are as "radical" as some of his critics have alleged.

Most members were outspoken in declaring that the senate would follow its judiciary committee in rejecting the nomination of Floyd H. Roberts to be a federal judge in Virginia. A vote was expected during the afternoon.

Both Oppose Him.

Roberts was opposed by Senators Byrd and Glass, Virginia Democrats.

Amlie's appointment has been under fire by some senators, because while a member of the house, he proposed a constitutional amendment to give the government wide powers over business and industry.

A member of the Progressive party, the 41-year-old Amlie gave up his house seat last year when he unsuccessfully sought nomination to the senate. After his appointment to the ICC, the Wisconsin legislature adopted a resolution of protest, declaring he was a Communist.

There was senatorial arguments, too, over a third presidential appointment—that of Dean Charles E. Clark of Yale law school to be a federal circuit judge.

Senator Austin (R., Vt.) raised the question whether Clark thought the government should be transformed from a "federal system with limited power to a national system in which the nation becomes a great reservoir of authority."

Austin said the nominee "may be unfit to be on the court" if he holds this and other views which, the senator declared, his writings intimated.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Senators Guilty of Same Practices They Charge to Roosevelt on Appointment

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Granting Carter Glass all the fine qualities that his friends and neighbors claim for him, and with the same polite acknowledgement to Senator Byrd, the rejection of a nominee for the federal district court on the mere ground that his nomination was "personally offensive and obnoxious" to them seems equally offensive and obnoxious to justice. The senate judiciary committee turned back Floyd H. Roberts, proposed by President Roosevelt, out of respect for the prerogatives and objections of the two Virginia statesmen, and there is no doubt that the selection was political. Such appointments always are, but I am not going to get expert about that or high-strung about the merits of Mr. Roberts, of whom I know nothing.

* * *

The reasons given are insufficient, even when supported by Senator Glass' charge that Roberts joined a conspiracy to discredit and dishonor the recommendation of Byrd and himself. Nothing was said about the ability, character and reputation of the nominee, and the men who blocked him seem to stand on the proposition that a good man may not become a federal judge if he is personally offensive and obnoxious to any two senators affected.

There are senators who would be fairly certain to find any decent citizen personally obnoxious and offensive. By the same process, any man who tried to discredit and dishonor a rogue in the senate would be disqualified for this noble public service, and any political slob who received the indorsement of such would be assisted, at least, if not put over, by sponsorship which should condemn him.

* * *

Of course, Mr. Roosevelt makes appointments in a spirit of political malice, and it is not necessarily true that anyone he selects or approves is the best man available for the job in question. He is so political that, in the spirit of the senators themselves, he might have waived merit and snubbed better men in order to strike a blow in a fight.

Nevertheless, in opposing Roberts, Senators Glass and Byrd gave reasons which, being honored by their colleagues, acknowledge politics as the first consideration in the selection of judges, and thereby give approval to the principle of political reprisal by the president in such matters. If politics comes first with them, why may not the White House place politics first, too, and wouldn't politics have come first if he had respected their wishes?

* * *

Senators there have been and are whose approval should be regarded as a stigma, and who should be discredited and dishonored in the public interest. But the senators work under an elaborate code of courtesy and co-operation, and though a member may be, by common consent, a priceless heel who never has felt an honest motive in his life, his colleagues usually respect his prerogatives as long as he observes a similar respect for theirs.

I lack further information beyond the fact that the president sent his name to the senate for confirmation, but it seems plain on his record that much more serious objections should be offered, and, in the public behalf, against confirmation of Gaston L. Porterie as judge of one of the newly created districts of Louisiana. Mr. Roberts was "personally" offensive and obnoxious to Senators Glass and Byrd, but would they inform themselves on Mr. Porterie's conduct as Huey Long's attorney general of Louisiana and resist with equal vigor the confirmation of a man who served a ruthless dictatorship which used the courts to whip its political opponents?

* * *

And, although he has no record as a federal judge as yet, is Porterie acceptable to Frank Murphy, the new attorney general, at a time when he is making a general inquiry into the actions of men already serving on the federal bench? Mr. Porterie's nomination indicates that up to confirmation politics governs the personnel of the bench in the view of Mr. Murphy, although it may indicate that he approves Porterie's record, which would be even more alarming.

The personal prestige and feelings of senators are of no public importance, but the Porterie nomination might be opposed in the interests of the court itself.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—After all these 70 years the truth about the Union Pacific railroad has "outed." The truth is that the old boys who built it needed the sage, hard-driving direction of a Cecil-the-DeMille.

Let's not quibble. Let's admit, right off, that they got it built. It's down in history (unless the DeMille has changed that since the last time I peeked) that on a day in 1869 the panting woodburners of the rival cross-country roads met and kissed none too affectionate noses at a spot in Utah called Promontory. On that occasion, too, it is recorded that the Messrs. Leland Stanford, C. P. Huntington, Mark Hopkins of the Central Pacific took part in ceremonies of spike-driving with officials of the Union Pacific. So the old boys did get it done—and without the DeMille.

But think how much faster, how much better . . . on second thought, don't think of it. Go, instead, to location at Canoga park—some 20 miles from Hollywood—and watch the Master bring History to life:

This, believe me, is colossal and gigantic—and, incidentally, very interesting. Worthy, indeed, of the four or five cameras focused on it. THE camera, the one on the big crane, is the one THE DeMille sits at, loudspeaker to mouth, barking. For a man who has just taken up his stretcher and walked—collapse from the strain of a mighty movie titan's worries—DeMille has a healthy bark.

* * *

The Central Pacific's Jupiter, on the left with the oversized smokestack, is as gaily decorated with pre-Victorian art and bunting as is the Union Pacific's "119." The U. P.'s Irish are as typical as the C. P.'s Chinese laborers. The tall-hatted officials and the hoop-skirted, bonneted ladies, the be-feathered, blanketed Indians make a pleasingly authentic foreground. With those low hills in the background (not California's best but they suit history) and the tents and the quaint telegraphic accommodations for the gents of the press, it's all on the up-and-up. DeMille's crew are seeing to it that the rest of the foreground, inconsiderately left bare by nature and Canoga park, is right too. They're planting tumbleweeds and scrub cedar, and they're spraying the white earth with darkening paint to kill its glare.

Enough for "Union Pacific." Let's take up DeMille.

* * *

They say it's an act. If so, somebody ought to tell him the act is sour. It is No Longer Cute. Whoever writes his script of abuse, sarcasm, and public ridicule of his underlings should get a note from him, but won't—because I'm afraid C. B. thinks it all up himself.

Now I don't know Charlie, don't even know who he is, except that he was trying to obey the DeMille's instructions about having a rail laid in place for the scene. Showman DeMille kept barking—via loudspeaker, mind you—about how slow Charlie was, and what did Charlie think he was doing? I don't know Charlie, but my blood boils still, thinking of him.

I do know Akim Tamiroff. Akim is a star. The great Cecil barked at him too. Akim was talking, the center of a little group, when C. B. was talking too. Via loudspeaker. C. B. loudspoke, asking desistence. "I can't compete with so great an artist," said C. B., chuckling.

For this highly quotable line, a chuckle. For Charlie—also intended for quotation, make no mistake—no chuckle.

DeMille, I am sure, thinks his behavior makes good copy. It always, has. But me—I'm sick of the benign, omnipotent god DeMille of the legend, the lovable, heart-of-gold despot of the sets.

Somehow my sense of humor fails me. Or is it that DeMille just isn't amusing any more?

TIE-UP WITH INDIANS LIKELY TO MAKE CITY MORE BASEBALL CONSCIOUS

By OSCAR RUHL
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

THE announcement that a working agreement has been arranged for the Mansfield club of the Ohio State league with the Cleveland Indians through their Springfield farm brought out more favorable talk for baseball in this city than in many years

Being a Cleveland town as far as big league baseball is concerned, the tie-up is expected to make Mansfield more baseball-conscious than ever.

Mansfield fans have indicated a preference for an affiliation with Cleveland. Now that they have it, the Ohio State league type of ball shoulld not be as difficult to sell as in the past.

Norman Cohen, who will exercise the option he owns on the franchise today, has plenty of work to do before he can place a ball team on the field, but he is gradually getting things in shape

Negotiations for the rental of the fairground are virtually complete, and engineers have already surveyed the field for a night plant. Estimates for the construction of an addition in front of the grandstand have also been obtained.

Next in order is a ticket sale. It is too early to conduct a campaign, of course. But it is not too early to form an organization.

Awakened by the announcement of the tie-up with the Indians, Mansfield fans are expected to go to bat for Cohen in a big way.

City League Plans Major Attractions.

CITY Class A league moguls are planning to bring a number of crack basketball quintets to the high school gym for exhibition games before the season comes to a close.

A first-class attraction was offered the home town fans a few weeks ago when a team of Ohio college freshmen was brought to the city for a tussle with an all-league club

This week the league will stage another set of attractive games. The date is Wednesday, the site is the Tyger lair, and the opposition for the City league teams will be provided by Bliss college of Columbus and two teams yet to be selected The Minerva Eagles were scheduled for the other game, but were forced to cancel.

Bliss will meet the once-defeated Yuncker Sports, while the Westinghouse Electrics and Rex Billiards will engage the other foes

Vern Jones, who is president of the league, said that an attempt is being made to bring the Firestone Tires of Akron, a member of the National Pro league, to Mansfield at a later date

Butler Hands Nova Second Loss of Year

Bulldogs Romp Over Strong Ashland County Team.

Butler high school cagers added to the prestige of the Richland county league Saturday night when they toppled Nova, 43 to 23, on the Bulldogs' court.

The defeat was only the second suffered by the Ashland county team during the regular season in two years. Nova was undefeated last season and its only setback prior to Saturday this year was administered by Sullivan.

Nova was never in the ball game as Coach Bob Burgett's Bulldogs jumped into an unsurmountable lead in the first half.

Wendall Ward and Kenny Miller again were the offensive stars for Butler, scoring 14 to 13 points, respectively. Rock tallied 10 for the losers. All of Butler's points came via the field goal route except three.

Butler limited the visitors to only two baskets in the first half. In the first period, the Bulldogs leaped into a 13 to 3 lead, and lengthened the advantage to 25 to 6 at the half.

Burgett used substitutes freely in the third period,and Nova outscored Butler, 9 to 2, but the Bulldogs still held a 27 to 15 edge going into the final quarter.

With the first-string lineup operating in the fourth period, the Bulldogs added to their lead without apparent difficulty.

Butler also took the preliminary game, defeating the Nova reserves, 33 to 26

Bucks Gain Conference Lead by Defeating Gophers in Overtime Period.

By STEVE SNIDER

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Indiana swings back into the Big Ten basketball race tonight to challenge a brand new leader with a definite wallop—Ohio State.

Playing before the greatest crowd ever to witness a basketball game in the west, Ohio State bowled over Minnesota in an overtime period, 31 to 30. Officially, 15,700 saw it.

Now comes Indiana, vastly improved and getting better, once defeated by Ohio State, but currently a dangerous contender

In the other two games Iowa plays at Illinois and Wisconsin invades Purdue.

In the Bloomington game, the Hoosiers rate no worse than an even chance of taking over the conference lead. Once the major problem was to stop Ohio State's Capt. Jimmy Hull, league scoring leader with a six game total of 86 points. But long John Schick Buckeye center, scored six field goals against Minnesota, four of them in the closing minutes to send the game into an overtime at 30 to 30 Dick Baker added the winning free throw. Indiana lost Sophomore Guard Herman Schaefer in the scholastic bill

Jap to Test Champ Friday

Kudo Signed for Tussle With Great Mephisto.

Tim Nolan, matchmaker of the Mansfield Quality club, announced today that he had signed one of the country's outstanding matches for decision in the Armory on Friday night. It will be a world light-heavyweight title bout between the Great Mephisto, present champion, and Kimon Kudo, brilliant Japanese invader.

Kudo is the greatest son of Nippon to arrive on these shores since the halycon days of Matty Matsura, who dogged the footsteps of America's welterweights until he ruled that division with an iron hand Some critics state that Kudo, in the heavier division, is even proportionally more formidable. A master of jiu-jitsu and well-acquainted with the catch-as-catch-can version of the wrestling sport, he is certainly the ace challenger for Mephisto's newly-acquired title.

Kudo defeated Mephisto in Charleston, W. Va., a few months ago, before the Great One managed to wrest the title from Billy Weidner.

Kudo and Mephisto will wrestle for two falls with a 90-minute time limit under Midwest Wrestling Association rules. The bout should complete the rennaisance of professional wrestling in Mansfield, for it will mark the third successive week that Mephisto has appeared here.

SMASHES WORLD RECORD THREE TIMES IN ROW

NEW YORK—(INS)—Roy Staley, California hurdle ace, today was established as the outstanding star in the Millrose games Saturday night, and as such will have his name inscribed on the Rodman Wanamaker international trophy.

Running indoors for the first time, Staley smashed the world record in the 60-yard timber topping event three times in a row. He took his preliminary heat, his semi-final heat and scored his triumph in the final in identical time—7.3 seconds. The previous world mark was a tenth slower.

Billiards to Appear on High School Program

The Rex Billiards first round champions of the Friendly House Senior league, will display their wares on the Mansfield high planks Wednesday night when the City Class A league presents a three-game program

The Cuemen's opponent has not been named, but Vern Jones City league president, said negotiations are underway to secure the Globe Clothiers of Galion for the contest.

The Galion club, with George Nana and Delnor Goldsmith, stars of the Hi-Speed team in the City league and John Burnison, Galion nigh coach, in the lineup should provide—a real test for the Billiards in a tussle which will open activities at 6:30 p. m.

Oscar Grimes and the Minerva F. O. E. quintet will not appear on the card as originally scheduled. The Minerva team was to meet the Westinghouse Electric club in the middle tilt but the game was called off because Grimes has been called to the Cleveland Indians' office for a conference.

An attempt is being made by Jones to have the Delaware All-Stars, who defeated the Ontario Sohioans Saturday night, play the Electries.

And the program will be climaxed with a battle between the fast Bliss College five of Columbus and the Yuncker Sports of the City league Bliss college is enjoying one of its most successful seasons in recent years and will be out to register its third straight triumph over City league clubs.

Norris Paces Men's Division

18-Year-Old-Girl Collects 200 Pins Above Average to Collect First Women's Prize of $10.

By OSCAR RUHL

TOSSING the 16-pound mineralite down the polished lanes with all the poise and confidence of a veteran bowler, Evelyn Jocha, 18, won the championship of the women's division in The News-Journal Individual Sweepstakes at the Meder Recreation alleys Sunday.

A protege of the Mansfield high school girls' league, Evelyn won the feminine title with a tournament score of 200, beating Runner-Up Peg Yingling by 76 pins The victory will pay her $10.

Bowling in the men's division also got under way over the week-end, but the titlist will not be determined until the final shift is completed next Sunday.

The leader in the men's division is Ed Norris, who, like Evelyn, carried a small average in the tournament. Norris boasts a tournament score of 162, with Harold Moore second with 115.

Boasts 118 Average.

This is Evelyn's first season as a competitor in a major women's league, and her development has been astonishing, although her average is still in the novice class.

Her average in the Women's league is only 118. A deduction of her average from the 672 pins she collected in the four games bowled across eight alleys leaves an even 200 sticks.

She never fell below 141 in any game as she averaged 168 pins in the four tilts. Her lowest score was shot in her first game. Finding the strike range late in the second game, she followed with a 160, and then jumped to 204 in which she marked up five straight strikes. She finished with a 167

To win second place, Mrs. Yingling blasted out games of 174, 157, 155 and 198 for a grand total of 684. She carried a 140 average.

Loaded down with a 153 average, Florence Handwork came through with the highest four-game total. She compiled a string of 153-156-183-233 to finish in third place with a 113 score.

Her 233 score was the high game in the women's division, and the only male contestant to do any better was Orin Hunter, who shot a 243

Fourth in the women's class was Hazel Altman, with a 106 tournament score. Idella Eberhart, improving with each game, grabbed fifth place in the final women's standings with 103 pins.

Norris dropped below his average in only one game as he jumped into first place in the men's division. An average of only 139 was lugged into the tournament by the Westinghouse league kegler, and he averaged 179 to take first place with a 162 score.

The former Mansfield high grid star started off with a 191, dropped to 179 in his second game, came back with a brilliant 217 and closed with a weak 131.

Moore of the Tappan Stove league, who rolled into second place with a 115 score, boasts an average of only 137, but was well over his mark in all of his games. His best score was 189 in the second game

Gains Third Place.

Cecil Burdett of the Mansfield Tire league rolled into third place with a 91 score Orva Spurlin is next high with 86 and Ben Harney follows with 80

Battling in the men's division for the $25 first prize will be resumed at 3 p. m. Saturday The final shift is scheduled late Sunday afternoon. Bowlers are urged to register for next week-end's shifts as a record entry is anticipated.

Registration may be made at the Meder bowling alleys.

WES FERRELL DETHRONES WANER AS GOLF CHAMP

CHAPTER XVIII

Wrapping the white coat around her, Alix walked over the wet grass and down to the pier and stood quietly, motionless, her hands holding tightly to the railing. The ceiling of dark clouds cast their shadows on the rippling water. There were sharp flashes of lightning not far away.

After tomorrow what was there for her? Mrs. Bishop's furnished room, employment agencies now that she'd told Don she wouldn't return to work, hot, lonely nights. She wouldn't see Kurt again. Gina would not invite her to their home. Gina was jealous. That was funny. Never see Kurt again, never be in love again. . . .

Tuck opened her eyes when she went into the bedroom and then turned on the lamp. Alix went to bed, knelt down, put her head in her arms, and cried as Tuck had never seen her cry before.

"He's married, Tuck! They're secretly married! And I'm crying like a spoiled child for something I can't have. But I didn't cry when I told him I hoped he'd be happy. Oh, no, I didn't cry then. I was very brave then and I lied and said I didn't love him!"

"Crying is good for you," Tuck said soberly. "I cried like that once when . . . when Henry was killed in the war, when the telegram came. That's my story, Alix. A lover who was killed in France. And people are quick to tell you to forget. I haven't forgotten in all these years. There was only one man I ever wanted, too."

Alix said, "I don't believe she'll make him happy. She won't want to be just his wife. That's all I'd want to be." Slowly she arose and looked down at the older woman. "Tomorrow after I talk with Don, after I get at the root of the gossip about us, I'm going back to where I started before March except that I'll know that love isn't for me, Tuck. It missed me. And I came so close to it."

* * *

In Kurt's apartment Gina drew Kurt aside.

"I like Alix, darling. She's a lovely thing. She left with Eddie who obviously adores her. Can't you get rid of all these people so that we can be alone? I'm going to talk to Jerry. I'll be back in a minute."

Jerry Fayne said sullenly, "You didn't want me to come and you've avoided me all evening. The uninvited guest. Gina, you can't . . ."

She spoke low but sharply. "What happened in Havana is over and forgotten as far as I'm concerned, Jerry. Forget it. I've told you that a thousand times. Don't be a fool. This is my choice and I like it. I love Kurt."

"In Havana you loved me. But not enough. If I'd had a fat bank roll . . . I know you, Gina. Kurt Deering is getting a dirty deal and he's too swell a person for it." He put his hand over hers and bent his handsome face closer. "I'm crazy about you . . ."

She rose, moved away, and glanced back at him. "It's too late, Jerry. Kurt and I are secretly married. Secretly, you understand? Now you know."

* * *

From the standpoint of natural beauty Ivy House was ideally situated. From the terrace the picturesque valley lay in wide areas of green and brown punctuated by trees in their fresh early summer foliage.

Wearing a yellow dress and white sandals and carrying a small white hat in her hand, Alix said, "I thought that such places existed only on the movie sets of Hollywood, Don."

With him leading the way she had been taken through every room, one more magnificent than the other. Don, immaculate in white linen, had explained where partitions had been torn out to make rooms larger and with an amused smile told her of the usual difficulties with interior decorators. But despite renovation, Alix thought, it was still the house originally planned by a woman who intended to spend her life there and raise her children there. It was still Bernice Lawrence's house.

They came out on the shaded terrace. Alix sat on the ledge and looked into the garden below.

"I'm sorry I can't offer you something to drink," he said. "The next problem is to staff the place with servants."

Looking at his steadily, she spoke in her throaty voice. "Don there is something I've been wanting to talk to you about for some time. Please listen to me. Before I left the office, before I was ill, I heard unpleasant rumors—about us. They were so absurd. But I didn't get really alarmed until Nancy wrote me from New York, calling me a false friend. Then I was ill and went down to Tuck's. That's why I'm not coming back to the office—because your fiance, whoever she is, may have heard that gossip and naturally wouldn't want me working for you. I haven't been able to tell you this until today. You are going to be married, aren't you? That's the reason why the house. . . ."

He nodded.

Alix asked, "Then may I ask who she is? I want this talk about us to stop."

"It's you."

"Oh, please be serious. I've been awfully worried about that gossip. Nancy . . ."

He ground his cigarette with the toe of his white shoe, thrust his hands deep into the pockets of his white coat, and looked at her intently.

"I am serious. It's you, Alix. Now will you stop being the idealistic young thing and look reality in the face?"

That made her smile. "Reality and I are old friends, Don." Then she looked puzzled. "But I don't understand."

"You will when I have finished. I started those rumors. One night at a stag party when I'd been drinking too much. There was a fellow there, Andrews, who had known you casually when you were working for Henry Taylor. I don't know how the conversation got around to you but he bet me a thousand dollars that you wouldn't marry me. I told him you had already accepted and that I'd collect the day we were married. To challenge him further I had the house done over."

The object of a bet between men who had been drinking too much . . .

"I'm afraid," she said, low, "that you had better give Mr. Andrews a check for a thousand dollars."

"I'm coming to that. Now I'd like to tell you something about me. I've played around high, wide and handsomely most of my life. Too much money and too many women who wanted my money. They didn't want me. They wanted the things I could give them. And I've lived up to my part as a playboy. Nancy is through with me. She's with her mother. She sent a maid to the apartment for the rest of her things. I don't blame Bernice for divorcing me. No woman ever had more of a right. She couldn't share with me other women and I don't blame her." After a little he asked, "I haven't much left to look forward to, have I?"

"Bernice . . ."

"I knew you'd say that. But it's too late to do anything about that. Too many ghosts. Let's consider you now. I've been waiting for Kurt either to marry Gina or break with her before I told you this. He isn't going to break with her. You saw them together last night. He's going to marry her. And marriage to him is for ever. That's the kind of a man he is. And you're in love with him. Am I right?"

"You are perfectly right."

"All right. What's ahead of you? A job in some office, a furnished room. The years go quickly, Alix, and suddenly you'll wake up and find you've missed everything. You're too lovely a girl to miss anything. And I have more money than I know what to do with. I'm not trying to buy you and I'm not lying to you. This is the Don Lawrence you don't know. This is the Don Lawrence who has to have people around him all the time because he can't bear to be alone and think of the mess he's made of his life. I'm not in love with you. I like you and I'd like to do something for you. You're gentle and beautiful. I love Bernice, Alix. Does that surprise you? Don't think up any nice reconciliation for us. It can't be done. There are too many ghosts. I tell you. But I can give you everything in the world, everything a girl could care for."

"But all you could give me doesn't compare with the thing I want most, Don."

"You think that today. But ten years from now . . ."

"I'll still feel the same. I know me. A furnished room and an inferior office job don't frighten me. Yes, it's lonely. I've thought about that. And I've also thought how wonderful it would be to have lovely things. All my life I've had to be satisfied with imitations. All my life I've had imitation fur on my coats and veneered furniture, things like that. But I don't want an inferior brand of love! I'll hold out to the end for the real thing in that."

His smile was cynical. "You're going to make me out an awful fool before Andrews and that crowd."

"How do you think I felt when everywhere I went I heard people whispering about us? And I knew nothing about it. Nancy and Bernice think I want your money."

"And you refuse what I've offered?"

"Thank you for being honest with me, Don. I think we understand each other now."

TINIEST MOTOR?

14 of Them Can Be Placed on Dime; Runs By Electricity.

KELSO, Wash.—(INS)—Merl Bassett, worker for the Cowlitz county public utility district, recently completed what he thinks is the world's smallest working electric motor.

The mechanism, which took Bassett 94 hours of spare time to complete, is so small 14 motors like it could be placed on a dime. Screws used in construction are 14 one-thousandths of an inch in diameter. The motor operates on 54 ten-billionths of one horsepower of energy.

PLANE PERFORMS AS SCARE-CROW

Colorado Uses Them To Flush Birds From Roosts.

DENVER—(AP)—Airplanes are being used experimentally in an effort to exterminate crows in northern Colorado.

In the first trial more than 15,000 crows were flushed by a plane that swooped close to their roosting place near Erie, Colo. About 100 volunteer hunters, armed with shotguns, were stationed nearby and slaughtered approximately 1,000 of the birds.

PLAYERS PLAN 3RD PRODUCTION

Try-Outs for Comedy Set for Friday; Present Murder Mystery Tomorrow.

With the presentation at Senior high school tomorrow night of the second Community play of the season, plans for the third production will get under way immediately.

Mrs. E. K. Bacon, director, will conduct try-outs at 7:30 p. m. Friday at the Ohio Public Service assembly room, North Adams street, for "Dulcy," the George Kaufman-Marc Connelly comedy. The try-outs are open to the public.

At 8:15 p. m. tomorrow the Players will present "Night Must Fall," a pathological study of a murderous monster hidden behind the clean-cut boyish face of a young Englishman. The play opens with all of the characters normal and rather gay, with suspense deepening as the story progresses toward a stirring climax.

Ben Goodenough, assistant director of the Players, has the role of the young Englishman, while Mrs. Herbert H. Schettler plays the feminine lead, that of an old English woman. The setting a comfortable English cottage at the edge of a woods, which was designed and built by Frank Forshee, remains unchanged throughout the play.

The seat board remains at Tawse's pharmacy and reservations may be made there until 7 p. m. tomorrow.

GARTERS HELP HIS SCHOOLING

Chicago Student Finds It Pays To Sell To Bow-Legged.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Garters for bow-legged men are helping Harold Steffee of South Bend, Ind., pay his tuition at the University of Chicago.

Steffee said his grandfather, John Koehne, invented the garters because bowlegged men need "something different." Steffee says the garter business nets him about $1,000 a year.

NOTICE!

Because, through no fault of its own, The News-Journal has been printing the comic strip "Tailspin Tommy" ahead of the regular release dates, appearance of that feature has been temporarily suspended, beginning today.

However, the comic strip has not been discontinued.

It will reappear with no interruption in the continuity of the story on Saturday, Feb. 25, in the week-end green tabloid, in which it will appear thereafter.

The new and popular strip, "Blondie," appears on this page daily, beginning today.

LIST FOLLOWS UTILITIES ON UPWARD RIDE

Signs of Truce Between Power Company and Government Cheer Traders.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Utilities led the stock market on an upswing today with pivotal issues advancing fractions to more than a point. There were a few wider jumps among preferred shares.

Prominent on the forward tilt were Consolidated Edison, North American, Electric Power & Light, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Westinghouse, General Electric, and N. Y. Central.

The more cheerful market sentiment was attributed partly to signs of a truce between the government and the power and light companies following ending of the Commonwealth & Southern-TVA battle. Elsewhere business generally was viewed as displaying a constructive trend.

Bonds followed stocks, on the upward ride. Commodities were mixed.

Boardrooms noted the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said: "Buyers continue conservative, generally buying for only a short distance ahead. Nevertheless, business is fairly well sustained, with small gains shown in some instances. Bars are moving better and some railroad orders have been placed. A quiet market in sheets and strip is in prospect for a brief period, since mills have worked off heavy backlogs accumulated last quarter and some customers are not immediately in need of heavy tonnage."

RIVER DROPPING, TOWNS CHEERED

Falling Tide Abates Alarm in Four States; 30,000 Left Homeless.

trict. The water swirled into Greenup avenue in Ashland, industrial city of 25,000, driving 50 persons from their homes. The water there reached 60.5 feet.

Mrs. Brown reported 500 persons sought shelter in the Cincinnati-Covington, Ky., area during the night as the water seeped past the 54-foot mark, two feet above flood stage.

There were four feet of water in Point Pleasant's Main street as the Ohio crested nine feet above flood level and started a slow decline. About 100 homes were abandoned, rescue workers said, as were a similar number in Ironton, O. At Portsmouth, American Legionnaires patrolled the 62-foot flood protection wall as the water came within four feet of the top before the rise was slowed.

Supplies were sent into southeastern Kentucky mountain areas after streams ran through villages at housetop levels. Typhoid warnings were posted. In Paintsville the water supply was exhausted. The Red Cross listed 15 counties in need of aid.

L. B. Moore, a Prestonburg business man, reported "so many homeless people in Beaver creek towns I couldn't count 'em."

Prepare to Return.

At Huntington, W. Va., city officials mobilized work squads to "mop up" the debris and muck left by the slowly retreating river as an estimated 2,000 refugees prepared to return home.

The surging river reached a crest of 56.9 feet—6.9 feet above flood stage—yesterday at midday and started to recede at 11 p. m. last night.

The 6 a. m. reading was 56.3 feet, falling .1 foot an hour.

Most of the estimated 2,000 refugees sought shelter in private homes. About 450 were being cared for in three city refugee stations. The Red Cross estimated 450 families had been forced to evacuate.

Officials said the health situation was good, but warned that all flooded homes must be cleaned thoroughly to avert the danger of disease.

Laidley hall, girl's dormitory at Marshall college was evacuated, and Dr. James E. Allen, president of the college, said classes would not be resumed until Wednesday. Superintendent O. C. Nutter of Cabell county schools said all schools would reopen except six in the city, two in Barboursville and two in Milton.

GALION — John Calvin Ness, 86, a lifelong resident of Galion and vicinity, died Saturday evening at his home, 608 South Union street. He had been ill since August, 1938, complications causing his death.

He was born in Galion, Nov. 29, 1853, one of 10 children of Michael and Sarah Ann (Ruhl) Ness.

His first schooling was in the building now occupied by the St. Joseph's parochial school pupils. At that time this was the only school building in Galion. When he was 11 years old he moved to a farm west of Renschville on the Winchester road, west of Galion. He attended the district schools known as Dice and Hillgrove, and when 16 went to Smithville academy in Wayne county, later attending three terms at the State Normal school in Lebanon.

Taught District Schools.

He taught in several district schools in Polk, Whetstone and Jackson townships, Crawford county, for 42 years. He also followed the carpenter trade and did some farming. He lived on a small farm on the County Line road, south of Galion, for a number of years.

For many years he was active in First Lutheran church where he had membership since a child. He served as superintendent and teacher in the Sunday school department, and was a member of the church council, the choir, and other organizations of the church.

His marriage was to Malinda A. McClure on Dec. 25, 1879, and in 1929 they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. She died Dec. 23, 1936.

FEW ASK WAGE ACCOUNT CHECK

Security Board Says 100 In District Have Sought Statements.

Less than 100 workers in the seven-county Mansfield district who have social security numbers have applied for statements showing the wages credited to their accounts in 1937, R. G. Mish, manager of the Mansfield field office of the Social Security board, said today.

"Our office has post cards which workers may use to obtain statements of credits on their wage records for 1937," Mish said. "But our records show that less than 100 of the 50,000 workers for whom accounts have been established in this district have asked for wage information."

Mish said that during 1939 employers throughout the district not only filed their information reports more promptly than they did in 1937, but also used more care in identifying the persons to whom the wages were paid.

over the basis of possible truce negotiations, went to Paris.

Negrin and Franco could find no basis for truce talks. The premier demanded a countryside Plebiscite; Franco would accept nothing but complete capitulation.

Only the condition of highways, where the retreating government militiamen had blown up many bridges, impeded the advance of Generalissimo Franco's hosts.

Led by motorized units, the central insurgent column took Figueras, the bomb-shattered temporary capital whence Negrin fled, and reached a point less than a dozen miles from the French line. Seo De Urgel, important communications center just [illegible] of Andorra, fell to the army in the west, and the divisions rolling up the Mediterranean line took and passed Palamos.

Between 6,000 and 10,000 government soldiers were added to France yesterday, and it was estimated that from 100,000 to 140,000 more were hammering at the gates today. President Azana himself was instrumental in persuading France to throw open the entrance at Le Perthus, and Cerbere also is to be made a point of entry.

France sped strong reinforcements to the frontier, including machine gun units. Heavy batteries of 75's were mounted on high ground around Le Perthus.

Trucks and trains hastened northward through France bringing additional food supplies, and authorities announced they were prepared to distribute at least 85,000 rations a day.

The road between Le Perthus and Figueras was a solid mass of civilian and military refugees of all ages, sexes and classes.

Each year more than 20,000,000 trout are "planted" in the mountain streams and lakes of Colorado.

MEASURE CROP ACREAGE FROM AERIAL PHOTOS

Soil Conservation Employes Stay Inside Now Instead of Tramping in Fields.

Instead of tramping over muddy fields to measure the crop acreage on Richland county farms, federal soil conservation employes now stay at headquarters and take their measurements from aerial photographs

Resembling patch-work quilts, the photographs were made by U S. army fliers from a height of 5,000 feet and show every village, farm home field and stream in most of the county's 18 townships.

The county soil conservation office has photographs for every township south of a line extending eastward from Shelby. The pictures were made for the Muskingum Conservancy district which does not include the northern tier of townships, so that section was not photographed.

With measuring instruments, soil program workers in Mansfield can accurately determine from the photos how many acres of corn or wheat an applicant for government payments raised last year and how his farm is divided.

Save Days of Work.

"The maps save us days of work in making actual measurements of farms, and we can rely on the photographs as accurate," C L. Taylor, county conservation chairman, said

Each photo is approximately two-by-three feet in size and shows about six square miles of landscape Section lines are plainly visible, and it is possible to determine the kind of crop produced in a field when the photographs were made by the color of the field on the photograph. Woodlots and pasture lands show dark on the maps, while cultivated fields are light colored

The photographs are also used by County Engineer Howard C. Sword for mapping roads and streams in the county, the topography of the county showing plainly in the pictures

The photos were obtained from the state soil conservation office at Columbus through the Muskingum Conservancy board

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1939.

After taking a quick look around, it may seem that Jesse James merely had another way of doing the same thing.

Why must the radio fade right in the middle of what seems to be the program's only good joke—judged by studio applause.

"Where are we to find another Hitler?" a Nazi orator dramatically queries—but surely there must be other ambitious paper hangers somewhere in Europe.

Enforcement Example Points the Way.

LAST week's enforcement program did three things: (1) It proved a contention that apparent inadequacy of parking space on business streets resulted from overtime parking by persons who disregarded restrictions; (2) It showed that either voluntary or compulsory observance of parking regulations will obviate any immediate need for installation of parking meters; (3) It demonstrated that patrolmen assigned to traffic duty can do a capable job and can maintain a consistent enforcement policy, if encouraged to do so.

The heretofore spasmodic traffic "drives," short-lived and undependable, naturally aroused resentment among those who were "caught" during a day, or a few days, of sudden police activity that stopped as abruptly as it started.

If it now becomes evident there is serious intent to make this a permanent enforcement policy, applied each day without favoritism, there will be quick public acceptance of the idea and greater care in learning and abiding by traffic regulations governing parking, double parking, observing traffic lights and stop signs, conforming to speed limits in residence and business sections, and forming safer driving habits in general.

It may be noted also, that traffic enforcement thus far has been accomplished under the handicap of an outmoded and mechanically undependable motorcycle which requires two officers instead of only one needed for a modern three-wheel motorcycle without sidecar. Such a machine should be included in police department equipment as quickly as possible.

Advantages of open parking places convenient to stores extend in marked degree to encouragement thus given to out-of-town shoppers and to increased opportunity for tourists to stop here and make purchases while passing through the city.

Last Saturday's availability of short-time parking space on business streets and around Central park furnished an excellent example of the greater convenience accorded visiting and local shoppers as a result of spaces not being "hogged" by all-day parkers.

Members of the police department, and responsible officials, merit commendation for what has been accomplished thus far in improving Mansfield traffic conditions. It CAN be continued—and SHOULD be.

Too Soon for County Consolidations.

WHATEVER advantages or disadvantages there might be in carrying through the proposal of a state legislator to substitute 22 counties for the present 88 in Ohio, the project lacks imminence to such an extent that it need not cause serious concern.

Senator Maurice Lipscher, of Youngstown, sponsor of the measure, says it would eliminate unnecessary expenses of local government and increase efficiency.

Certainly it would, if properly administered—but it would also do away with 66 county seats and throw several thousand officerholders out of jobs, so there's no likelihood of any such step being taken in the near future—although it may gradually be worked toward in a 50-year program of progress.

Several advance steps must be taken for improvement of local government set-ups before there will be public readiness for consolidation of counties. The Lipscher proposal is too much like trying to put on a roof before erecting the walls.

Mrs. Mooney Opposes Divorce.

NOW that the glamour of "martyrdom" has been removed from Tom Mooney, since his release after serving 22 years in San Quentin prison, he becomes merely a rather pathetic misfit in present-day activities of organized labor, which have changed greatly from the direct-action period of which Mooney has long been a symbol.

Nor is the present domestic squabble of 56-year-old Mooney with his 61-year-old wife likely to enlist public sympathy for the aging agitator.

Whatever the elements of "incompatibility" may really be, it is very generally believed that Mrs. Mooney is the more admirable figure of the two, as she worked ceaselessly during the 22 years of Mooney's imprisonment to secure his release, earning her own living throughout that period.

Both are getting along in years. The disinclination of Mrs. Mooney to give her husband a divorce is understandable. When Tom has had a longer taste of freedom, and more time for adjustment to things as they are, he may change his mind about wanting a divorce.

Flowers and Education.

A COMMERCIAL high school has set up a flower shop which is to be operated by pupils. It follows an experiment which ran for eight weeks and seemed to prove that the shop had a right to exist because of its educational value.

A floristry course precedes work in the shop and teaches the pupils much about flower growing and selling, cutting flowers, making corsages and artistic bouquets, accounting, and so on. An interesting and unexpected result was that the pupils themselves so enjoyed the flowers that they began to spend less of their loose change for other things and to buy flowers instead. A girl told the interviewer she bought one rose every day because it made her "feel so much happier."

Florists in the city are pleased with the plan and glad to co-operate with the school authorities. They have promised to employ some of the students who finish the course. They believe their own business will be improved, not hurt, by this educational venture. Love of flowers grows like love of music and art.

Keeping Step

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Congress is greatly exercised over the supposed secrecy of President Roosevelt's foreign policy.

My own impression is that his policy is not as secret as is being represented. Still, when he summoned the senate's military affairs committee to the White House to hear the details of his program, it is a fact that he did pledge its members not to leak what he said to them. I think they HAVE leaked it all. Nevertheless nobody is quite sure about it.

Anyway, the president unquestionably discriminated somewhat in favor of the senatorial military affairs committee membership, implying that he could trust THAT group, but not the rank and file of senators and representatives.

And my!—how sore it made those not on the military affairs committee.

It made the members of the senatorial foreign affairs committee especially sore—the representatorial foreign affairs committee likewise—also the senate and house naval affairs committees.

Senators, if anything, are angrier than the representatives. This is because the senate, in particular, is supposed to indorse or veto any international dickers that the president, through the state department, may enter into.

Not alone are Republicans and anti - administration Democrats miffed. Plenty of good New Dealers are fretted, too.

To say the least, the thing was presidentially tactless.

Openly Arrived At.

It is constitutional that the president cannot declare war; it takes congress to do that.

Yet it furthermore is notorious that the president can take the country so close to war that congress cannot avoid declaring it. That is why statesmen like Representative Louis Ludlow of Indiana have tried to require a popular vote to precede a war declaration.

But that will take a constitutional amendment. Slow work!

Our anti-war folk are afraid of war before such an amendment can be adopted.

They do not believe that President Roosevelt wants war, to be sure. What they fear is that the president, by a series of secret international compacts, will involve the United States in international belligerency.

Nobody imagines that President Wilson wanted American participation in the World war in the 1900-teens.

The theory is that, by confidential tinkering with the situation, he finally involved Uncle Samuel—or could not help doing so. His motto was "Open covenants, openly agreed to."

Only, they weren't open and they weren't openly agreed to.

Popular Opinion Lacking.

These "q. t." bargains, between foreign offices and state departments, without public opinion back of them, don't hold water.

Old world cabinets are very much addicted to them.

Apparently we are entering into one of them with the democratic powers.

All right, we are on the side of the democracies.

It looks like getting us into a war, however. Look how the German and Italian governmentally-controlled press reacts to President Roosevelt's conference with the senate's military affairs committee!—which it doesn't know any more about than we do.

We had BETTER know about them.

I can sympathize with our military affairs committeemen, who want publicity.

Congress Rejects F. D. R. Dictation

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Sentiment on a number of issues between the White House and Congress is crystalizing. The lines are NOT based on the relief appropriation battle. Some of the President's supporters on that will desert him on other fights, and vice versa. Sometimes he will have a majority. Sometimes a minority. The big point of the relief fight was not the amount of money, it was loss of face and prestige by the President. It ended the six years of utter confidence in his direction and faith in his administration so far as spending is concerned.

Here is the way the issues look now:

DEVALUATION — The President will win. Congress will continue his present power to cut the gold value of the dollar down to 50% of its pre-Roosevelt status. Silver state senators swing the balance here in combination with the loyal bloc. The price of their votes will be extension of subsidy for domestic silver.

NEUTRALITY—Congress will NOT interfere with the sale of planes to France. It is impressed with necessity of strengthening France and Britain as surest means of preventing war. But sentiment is also strong against increasing amount of discretion to the President in enforcing the neutrality law. The belief is vigorous that changes of rules AFTER war starts means overt acts, hence endangers dragging U. S. in. Congressional sentiment is not quite "peace at any price" but ALMOST.

WAGNER ACT — Congress is set on modifying act along lines of A. F. of L. amendments introduced by Senator Walsh. President would like to dictate changes but will probably accept inevitable to avoid further loss of prestige.

APPOINTMENTS—A l m o s t certain rejection of Amlie for I. C. C. by the Senate on the ground he does not believe in capitalistic system will be the most definite and clear-cut setback in sight for the President. Equally sure rejection of Judge Roberts of Virginia, while vital politically as looking to 1940 convention delegates, will merely be following precedent of rejecting appointees "personally obnoxious" to senators from their states. Donald Wakefield Smith's rejection — if the President persists in renaming him to the Labor Board—will be another A. F. of L. victory.

TAXES — Congressional sentiment is so strong against Roosevelt's wish to restore original tax on undistributed corporation earnings and capital gains taxes that he may abandon fight. The President MUST ask for more revenue. Congress is definitely set on boosting rates on incomes from $10,000 to $50,000, just as definitely against boosting higher levies—because of law of diminishing returns — and doubtful about reducing exemptions. The President will have plenty of chance to study the situation before making any recommendations.

SOCIAL SECURITY — Congress will NOT go as hogwild on old age payments as campaign pledges of succesful candidates might indicate. It will boost them, advance date on which they go into effect. It will NOT reduce payroll taxes, but may force the Treasury to contribute to the kitty. The President will oppose the last vigorously.

REORGANIZATION—The President will NOT get the power he really wants to revamp government agencies and departments. Congress will not consent to turning I. C. C., Civil Service Commission, etc., into mere administration underlings. Senator Byrd will continue to annoy the Administration considerably by insisting on real economy.

RELIEF—Senate votes cutting politics out of federal payrolls, though partially nullified by the House, point the way to more trouble for the New Deal in reorganization of the W. P. A. set-up and control of the appropriation for relief in the fiscal year beginning July 1, next.

Swelling on Neck Is Protective.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A MOTHER may be terribly alarmed at lumps or swellings that appear on the neck of one of the offspring. Yet, when understood, the cause for alarm disappears.

In most instances, they are enlargements of the lymph nodes and the swelling is due to a simple inflammation somewhere in the mouth or nose cavity. The enlargement is entirely a protective mechanism and stops the infection from going all over the body.

If, for instance, the tonsils are inflamed, the poisons and germs finally get too much for the tonsil tissue itself and threaten to break bounds. Nature has provided in such an instance that the lymph nodes will receive the overflow and calm down the trouble without allowing any widespread infection.

Dr. Murphy, the great Chicago surgeon, used to call this method of overcoming an infection, cofferdamning, likening the lymph nodes to those water-tight enclosures as of piles packed with clay, used to expose the bottom of a river, etc.

Lymph nodes are found all over the body, bound together by small strands of hollow vessels, so that they form a communicating system. The main systems are those in the neck, which drain the mouth cavity and nose and the ears; those under the armpit, which drain the arms and breasts; and those in the groin, which drain the legs. A small boil or infection may appear on the toe or foot, and in the course of time a lump appear on the groin. It may break down and become full of pus and have to be opened, but usually it can be aborted by rubbing with iodine or applying heat.

Look for Cause.

The important thing in the treatment of these swellings is the treatment of the original site of infection. Thus in the presence of lymph nodes in the neck, look for bad teeth, with an acute abcess, or sore gums, infected spin on the scalp from lice or other parasites, as well as tonsilitis. When these are treated, the lymph nodes will subside automatically.

All of these lymph node enlargements are not so simple. In young children they may enlarge without any obvious primary focus of infection. This may be a form of tuberculosis called scrofula. It was formerly much more common in this country than it is now, because, like all forms of tuberculosis that many come from infected milk and herds, it has been largely eliminated with the splendid preventive work done by our American veterinarians. In England it is as common as it ever was, because in England the veterinarians compromised and temporized with the tuberculosis in cows, and did not eliminate it entirely.

The treatment of the chronic scrofulous type of lymph node inflammation is hygiene, sunshine, good food; plenty of Vitamins A and D. When the nodes are ripe, they should be removed by sugical operation.

This does not by any means close the subject of lumps in the neck. We began to list all the causes of neck lumps in a class of medical students, and when we had reached 22 we gave up.

Eyesight And Driving.

The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness calls attention to a frequent cause of automobile accidents which is ignored in driver's license tests in most states.

Quoting as an authority a study made by the Institute of Human relations at Yale University, the society says that from 20 to 40 per cent of all individuals have one deficient eye which handicaps them in driving. The speed of the eyes in picking up objects as they rove up and down the road in driving is shown by the study to be much slower when one eye is below par.

A study of California accident records indicates that in many cases defective vision was the primary cause. In most cases the persons involved believed their sight was normal.

No special hardship would result if eye examinations were made mandatory in procuring a driver's license; on the contrary, the study indicates that such examination might prevent many accidents. — St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Should a Job Be the Main Event Or Merely a Side Issue?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEY'RE at it again, Dad and Jim. Wrangling about Jobs . . . how a fellow should feel about his job . . . whether it should be the Main Event or a Side Issue . . . and whether Dad, for all his long hours and low wages, got more out of life as a young worker than Jim does today. Dad, of course, insists that he did. Son, with equal sincerity, insists he's a screwball. So it goes—whenever the Older Generation and the Younger Generation meet.

Life has turned many a somersault in this last half century—but in no way has there been a greater change than in our ATTITUDE TOWARD JOBS. Life, for Dad, in 1909, centered around his Job, as it had for all his fathers before him. Work wasn't a curse; it was a man's Main Interest in life, practically his sole source of adventure and human contact. He may have worked twice as long and for half the price which the modern worker receives, and under conditions which would give any current Board of Health pink fits. But he'd have thought you crazy if you had told him he was a Downtrodden dog.

To the contrary, the 1909 worker was both proud and pleased with his lot. There wasn't the organized competition which Big Business presents today, but there was much more individual challenge . . . and a bigger kick if you could do your job better than the other fellow. A five-hour day would have been wasted on Dad. He wouldn't have known what to do with all that leisure . . . he'd have been miserable, missing the gossip and excitement of the daily round.

Take any of those Old Codgers and they'll swear they got more out of their twelve—or ten-hour, $3-day, six-day week than son does out of his five-hour, $8-day, five-day week. And incredible as it may seem—saved more on $80 a month than son does on $200.

Son, on the other hand, insists that such a condition was completely cockeyed . . . believes they're making most of it up. They couldn't have been satisified to drudge like that. They had a Slave Complex . . . didn't know what Real Living was like. Work, to Son, is anything but the Main Issue. It's something you gotta do to get the wherewithall. If you're lucky, you like your Job—fairly well. If you're unlucky, you don't. But, in either case, you keep your eyes on the clock . . . don't do a darned thing you aren't paid for . . . and start Really Living only after the office door bangs behind you.

THERE ARE, SON CONCEDES, DOPES WHO REFUSE TO ACEPT THIS PROGRAM . . . WHO PREFER TO PLUG THE CLOCK AROUND. SUCH SAPS ARE NOT ONLY INDIVIDUAL BLIGHTS BUT A MAJOR MENACE. BY WORKING OVERTIME . . . BY SHOWING UNDUE ENTHUSIASM AND SHOULDERING UNPAID-FOR RESPONSIBILITY, THEY MAKE THINGS TOUGHER FOR EVERYONE AND SHOULD, OH, DEFINITELY, BE FIRMLY REPRESSED.

Ask Son what he means by "Real Life" and he'll name diversified aims and interests and commodities. Clothes, keen ones—English imports, if possible—these rank high in the program. Cars? Of, defintely. Sports of all sorts. Shows. Travel—ad lib. And, of course, Romance—when and if you can afford to keep it in the style to which YOU desire to become accustomed.

Such, to Son . . . to even very regular 1939 males . . . are the Serious Esentials of Modern Life. Dad—it goes without saying—snorts at them. Calls them Sissy Stuff. Usually gets downright profane. Insists, once more, that—to a REAL MAN—jobs, etc., etc., etc. And again, the row is on—.

So what. I'm putting that up to you. What's YOUR vote on this Job question? Do you side with Dad—or Son? And in either case do you think the world is the better or worse because of their particular viewpoint? Quite a question! Got an answer? We'll be waiting!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Sometimes instead of attending the theater I give my tickets to doctors, who pass the tickets along to their nurses or assistants and then permit me to witness operations. In this manner I have sat in on practically every major operation on the calendar, and frequently the dramas observed in the operating room have been superior to those found on the stage.

For instance, one night I swapped "Tobacco Road" for a Caesarian delivery. On another occasion "Three Men on a Horse" got me a leg amputation. "Hellzapoppin" was good for a goiter removal, and only recently I have been obligated to Noel Coward because ticket to his new revue "Set to Music" resulted indirectly in my being invited to witness a delicate brain operation.

Now probably you think I am insane, and I will not cavil with you on that point. But I like operations. To me there is something that goes beyond fascination in the ability of men to dismantle the human body, like a jewelr taking a clock apart, and then putting it back together again so that it ticks.

* * *

THERE is also something fascinating to wearing mask and gown, like a little boy with a sailor uniform, and, on occasion, even to being introduced as "Dr." to patients who might resent the presence of lay observers.

I remember one night about 2 o'clock the telephone rang and a doctor friend of mine said I had 30 minutes to reach the hospital if I wanted to witness an important abdominal operation. So I jumped into my pants and shirt, grabbed a necktie, and with shoes in hand, ran downstairs and dressed in a taxicab on the way to the hospital.

When I got there the operator drew me aside and told me relatives of the patient were there and that he would have to introduce me as a doctor. So in we went and I gravely shook hands with the man's brother and his wife. They seemed glad to see me, feeling no doubt that concurring opinions from two men of medicine were more encouraging than a single diagnosis.

* * *

ANYWAY, the patient, by accident, had been critically wounded, and as my friend the surgeon gave me a history of the case I agreed profoundly with everything he suggested; then we put on gowns and went in for the operation. It was a delicate and a lengthy one, as the bullet had penetrated the vital organs, but at last it was completed, and I am happy to report that the patient made a complete recovery.

And so to me the big New York hospitals are exciting rendezvous where life and death pass each other daily in the corridors. Like the theater, from the front side of the curtain, they provide thrilling drama. But, unlike the theater there isn't any make-believe here. It's a game where everything is always on the level.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

The World a Mirror.

You say the world is hard and cold;
The world is anything
And everything, a mirror set
Reflecting what you bring.

To it. If it is cold and hard
To you, within yourself
You have the power to change it, change
Its pride, its way, its pelf.

The world is but a looking glass,
It mirrors us each day,
Gives back to us that which we bring
To it, sad dreams or gay.

A Farmer's Diary

Winter Rainstorm.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT WAS a gray and dismal morning. A strong wind drove the scudding clouds, and promised change from the unseasonable warmth.

I laid aside my newspaper, with its war-threatening headlines, and went to the big barn floor to fold and tie some grain sacks that I had borrowed, and must return. The mud was deep in the drive. I skirted the bad places, and put down a board to step upon.

The old barn was empty and desolate. As I worked, the wind grew stronger. It rattled the huge, swinging doors upon their overhead tracks, until it threatened to tear them loose. It whistled around the corners like a plaintive, mournful lament. The day grew darker and darker. My thoughts were tinged, like the day, with the threat of change to come. At last I finished, and walked toward the door.

In that instant, rain fell suddenly upon the shingles overhead. It came in gusty, wind-driven sheets, for quite a few minutes. I stood and watched, keeping dry, and enjoying the sight of the sweeping threads of rain, the odor of it, the staccato rhythm of it upon the roof. In five minutes the worst of the squall had passed. In five more, the sun came out.

I lifted my eyes toward the horizon, then, and stopped, startled and thrilled by what I saw.

Behind my neighbor's big white house, with its two, black, towering cedars, a brilliant rainbow had sprung into being. It was a short length, very clear and beautiful—its vivid blue, rose, yellow lavendar and green made a path of light like an upward-pointing arrow.

I felt my spirits lift. The bow of promise! Without that big, dark scudding cloud it could not have been. Even as I watched, it grew faintly visible in a wider arch across the northeastern sky. But the brightest spot, the accent of the whole picture—the very rainbow's end—was where that big white farmhouse, with its cluster of barns and sheds, stood solidly upon a rise of ground, just up the road.

SEC Opens Inquiry In U. S. Insurance Companies Today

INVESTORS TO BE PROTECTED, DOUGLAS SAYS

Commission's Chairman Tells Policy Holders Interest Won't Be Jeopardized.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Chairman William O. Douglas of the securities and exchange commission, opening the national monopoly investigating committee's study of insurance companies, today assured policy holders that the committee will develop nothing to jeopardize their interests.

Douglas said the inquiry—the first comprehensive study of insurance company practices since 1906—would not attack or question the adequacy of reserves of any company.

Under state laws, he said, "the legal reserve companies are required to set aside in restricted investment funds sufficient to assure that each policy holder will receive the amount of his policy when his risk matures."

"No policy holder need have any concern that any fact brought out in this inquiry will in any way jeopardize the protection which he counts upon through his insurance policy," he said.

Will Present 'Facts.'

Douglas promised the committee that the SEC would present "incontrovertible facts" on the manner in which insurance companies employ "the vast economic power they hold." The SEC will attempt to show, he said, the method by which insurance managements attain and retain their power.

"This is a logical point of approach, since management formulates investment policy," Douglas said.

Since 1906, when the last study of insurance companies was made by the New York state Armstrong committee of which Charles Evans Hughes, now chief justice of the supreme court, was counsel, there has been a spectacular growth of insurance business, he continued.

In 1906, there were 128 companies, with aggregate assets of $2,924,253,848 by the end of 1937, 308 companies had assets of $26,249,049,214, he said.

"Three individual companies in 1906 each commanded approximately one-half billion dollars in assets," Douglas said, adding that a previous inquiry had recommended that companies should not be permitted to grow beyond one-half billion dollar firms.

"Yet today," he continued, "each of these three companies commands well over a billion dollars in assets. One of them, the New York Life Insurance company, has grown from approximately $474,000,000 in assest to $2,520,000,000 in assets. The Metropolitan Life Insurance company, which then had assets of only $176,000,000 now has assets totaling close to $5,000,000,000.

"This tremendous growth is itself cause for inquiry."

WARNS AGAINST FAKE SOLICITOR

Blind School Disclaims Sponsoring Contribution Seeker.

Supervisors of Mansfield's WPA blind school issued a warning today against a man who claims he is a solicitor for the school and is alleged to have obtained several small donations.

James Gordon, a director of the school, said the fake solicitor was working under the name of "Rev. Hayes." Gordon described him as a large, middle-aged man.

"We have authorized no one to collect funds, and any reports of solicitors who say they are collecting for the blind school should be sent to the police department," Gordon said.

2 CLAIMS ADDED

Flooded Cellar Problem Also Faces Council Tomorrow.

Along with a heavy docket of legislation scheduled to come up tomorrow night, city council also will have to consider two damage claims submitted today as the result of the water-in-the cellar problem from the heavy rain early last week.

The claims, totaling $45, were presented by Mrs. Katherine Myers, 67 State street, and Mrs. Albert Brandt, 59 State street. Both property owners claim that during the two-day rain the sanitary sewers backed up into their basements, resulting in the hiring of persons to clean the cellars.

The major issue facing council is a measure prohibiting the Sunday sale of 3.2 beer. The measure, has already had two readings, and comes up for passage tomorrow night. If approved with a majority vote it will become a law in 30 days unless vetoed by Mayor Claude M. Hunter.

Another ordinance, one which will be given its second reading authorizes the installation of parking meters in downtown Mansfield.

30 Slated To Get Job Insurance To Lose WPA Jobs

Distribution of unemployment compensation checks in Richland county during the past week marked the beginning of a WPA layoff which is expected to effect approximately 30 workers in the Mansfield area.

While only one worker eligible to receive unemployment insurance had been laid off here today, WPA officials said they expected additional layoff orders within the next week.

Further indications that a total 30 were expected to be discharged was seen in an assignment of 30 new workers to the county road project today.

A. H. Moellenkamp, county WPA engineer, said the new assignments, the first to be received here in several weeks, had been placed on the road project in Weller and Springfield townships and boosts the total number on the program to 450 workers.

Meanwhile J. L. Kelley, director of district six of WPA in Ohio said that workers laid off projects because they were receiving unemployment insurance benefits would be eligible for re-employment.

"When the period of their compensation benefits ends, they will be re-employed on the same basis as though they were returning from jobs in private industry," Kelley added.

'OSCAR TIME' ARRIVES AND SO FILM FOLK PICK YEAR'S 'BEST'

(By Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD — Twelve thousand film folks, with the world as a kibitzer, began choosing today the best picture and best actors of 1938.

It's "Oscar Time" in Hollywood —the time when stand-ins and stars, "yes men" and producers, have equal votes in selecting the winners of gold-plated academy statuettes.

The list of nominees, compiled by the screen guilds, was released last night.

Of the ten pictures named as possibly the best last year, two—"The Citadel" and "Pygmalion"—were British products, and a third, "Grand Illusion," was French.

Two Britishers—Robert Donat and Leslie Howard — and Gallic Charles Boyer shared nominations as the five best male players of 1938 with home-grown Spencer Tracy and James Cagney.

A British discovery, Wendy Hiller, broke into the ranks of five women nominated for the best feminine performance.

And the literary pride of the British Isles, bewhiskered George Bernard Shaw, was listed as doing one of the five best jobs of screen writing during the year.

The statuettes, or "Oscars," will be presented to the winners at the annual awards banquet the night of Feb. 23.

"Alexander's Ragtime Band," biggest money-maker of 1938, got in the list of ten best pictures, but Walt Disney's feature cartoon, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," a close rival for the box-office championship, was not voted upon.

The nominations:

Best performance by an actor—Charles Boyer in "Algiers." James Cagney in "Angels With Dirty Faces," Robert Donat in "The Citadel," Leslie Howard in "Pygmalion," and Spencer Tracy in "Boys' Town."

Best performance by an actress —Fay Bainter in "White Banners," Bette Davis in "Jezebel," Wendy Hiller in "Pygmalion," Norma Shearer in "Marie Antoinette," and Margaret Sullavan in "Three Comrades."

Outstanding picture of the year —"Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Boys Town," "The Citadel," "Four Daughters," "Grand Illusion," "Jezebel," "Pygmalion," "The Adventures of Robin Hood," "Test Pilot," and "You Can't Take It With You."

POLICE HALT FLEEING AUTOIST AFTER 80-MILE-AN-HOUR CHASE

Churchgoers witnessed the climax to a thrilling 80-mile-an-hour chase at Harter and Lexington avenues Sunday morning when two heavily armed police cars forced a small coupe to a halt at the intersection. Four officers, armed with riot guns, took into custody Howard B. Lansaw, 24, of Middletown, whom the sheriff of Madison county charged had failed to pay for the purchase of 10 gallons of gasoline in London three hours earlier.

Police, receiving a radio broadcast that the car was headed north on Route 42, stationed a cruiser at Cook road to be on the lookout for the machine should it approach the city.

At 9:20 a. m. Radio Dispatcher Claude Watts received a message from car 4 that the coupe had sped past the intersection at a "high rate of speed," and that they were chasing the car north on Lexington avenue.

Dispatcher Watts relayed the message to car 6, also in Woodland. At 9:24 a. m. the report came back to headquarters that both cars had headed off the machine at Harter avenue and that they were on the way into the station with the fugitive and his machine.

Lanshaw was released to Sheriff G. F. Clark of Madison county who came here armed with a warrant for his arrest last night.

ANNEXATION OF SUDETENLAND CLOUDS U. S., CZECH TRADE PACT

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Germany's annexation of Sudetenland in Czechoslovakia is causing serious dislocation in the United States-Czech trade agreement program, it was revealed today.

Sidney Morgan, secretary of the U. S. Tariff commission, was disclosed to have told the house appropriations committee that of the items in the agreement, "60 per cent were originally from the areas" taken over by Germany, Poland and Hungary, and that "50 per cent of the imports from Czechoslovak areas came from the ceded portions."

The important commodities affected, he said, were textiles, glassware, porcelain, heavy chemicals, lumber, iron and steel products, musical instruments, leather gloves, hops, carved wooden toys and trinkets.

Morgan told the committee he had heard that glassware exporters, in order to get tariff benefits given Czechoslovakia but not accorded to Germany because of the reich trade policies, were making arrangements for a selling center in Prague, Czech capital, so they could export as from Czech territory.

He said that under the trade agreements program "the United States is running a balance of about $800,000,000 in excess of imports" in the first 10 months of this year, and said "a considerable proportion" of this was for exported arms and war supplies.

LAUNCH DRIVE TO CLEAR U. S. ON NEUTRALITY

Congressmen Propose Outright Declaration Against All Foreign Alliances.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Agitation for a declaration of national policy against entangling foreign alliances began in congress today.

An amendment to the neutrality law, proclaiming that the United States intends to remain strictly neutral as between all nation's controversies, was advocated by Senator Pat McCarran (D) of Nevada.

Meanwhile, a private senate inquiry was said to have revealed that the war department has delivered to Great Britain supplies of its "Universal Directors," up-to-the -minute devices used in anti-aircraft batteries.

The investigation was said to have developed that these instruments were turned over to the British in line with President Roosevelt's repeated public declarations in support of Democracies.

'Mind Own Business.'

Senator Schwellenbach (D) of Washington, an ardent New Dealer, joined the controversy over foreign affairs, with a blunt demand that the United States "mind its own business," he said:

"If war comes to Europe, the United States must have none of it. To be out, to keep out and stay out is the consummate wish of every straight-thinking American.

"Twenty-two years ago we thought we could reform Europe. We gave our lives, our blood and our resources to that task. We found out that if we really want to reform Europe, we must permanently police it.

"We helped Germany get rid of the Kaiser and they got Hitler. Should we relieve them of him, the chances are that another 20 years would see an even more dangerous leadership."

These developments in the controversy over the administration's national defense program, came as the spot light was turned upon the senate military affairs committee. The committee has yet to decide whether its secret testimony should be made public. The testimony related chiefly to statements by Secretary of War Woodring, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, and high ranking officers of the army and navy, regarding activities of the administration in aiding France and England in their shopping in this country for up-to-the-minute war planes.

Committee Chairman Morris Sheppard will call a meeting of the committee shortly for votes upon several pending motions, all aimed toward making public past testimony as well as that to be taken in the future, except testimony regarding secrets of value to the army and navy.

GALION—Mrs. John Koon of North Liberty street was dismissed from the Good Samaritan hospital Saturday night. Mrs. Carl Wideman of south of New Winchester was dismissed Friday afternoon.

PROPOSES NEW RELIEF SET-UP SCRAPPING WPA

Virginia Lawmaker Would Cut Yearly Cost to Billion; Introduces Bill.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—A new federal relief program, drastically revising the Works Progress Administration, scrapping its name and cutting the yearly cost to $1,120,000,000, was proposed today in a bill introduced in the house by Rep. Clifton Woodrum (D) Virginia.

Woodrum, who has piloted the administration's relief bills through the house, will urge passage of the measure when congress acts on the WPA program for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The Virginian's proposal won wide attention in the house because he led the recent successful battle in congress to slash $150,000,000 from President Roosevelt's emergency relief recommendation.

Cuts Cost In Half.

While Rep. Woodrum's plan retains federal relief administration, it is designed to lodge more power in local authorities.

Since congress already has appropriated more than $2,100,000,000 for relief this year, the Woodrum bill would slash costs in half.

The measure provides:

$1,000,000,000 to be spent for work relief by the new unemployment relief administration, and $120,000,000 is alloted to President Roosevelt for direct relief.

The new URA is empowered to spend money directly or make grants for work relief in local communities.

The $1,000,000,000 would be allocated for expenditures in various states by act of congress. The administration could vary this allocation but 10 per cent.

To be eligible for work-relief, an applicant must be employable, must have sought private employment and cannot be eligible for aid from any other source.

No person can be employed on unemployment relief for more than 12 months. Must accept private job if offered.

Administrative staff of URA cut to 1,500 employes in Washington and 5,000 outside.

FREEDA HERRING WED AT PLEASANT VALLEY

Becomes Bride of Clifford A. Faust In Simple Ceremony Performed at Church Near Lucas; Reception at Family Home.

ONE of the most interesting weddings to take place in Mansfield social circles in some time was the marriage Saturday night of Miss Freeda Ruth Herring and Clifford A. Faust. The ceremony was read at 7:30 p. m. in the little church at Pleasant Valley near the Herring family home outside of Lucas.

Rev. Carl W. Driscoll united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Herring and the son of N. H. Faust, Dubuque, Ia., in marriage before a group of friends and relatives.

For the candlelight service before an altar decorated with lighted vesper candles, Miss Herring wore a cyclaman colored dress with a fitted shirred waistline, and a jacket made with similarly shirred sleeves. Her accessories were of navy blue, and she wore an orchid shoulder corsage and a string of pearls which were the gift of the bridegroom.

Sister Attends.

Her eldest sister, Miss Florence E. Herring, was maid of honor. She wore a simple navy blue dress with white trim. Paul E. Harter served as best man.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Herring wore a navy blue dress of lace and crepe with a corsage of yellow roses.

After the wedding a group of 50 friends and relatives were received at the Pleasant Valley farm home of the Herrings which was recently purchased by Louis Bromfield, Mansfield author, who will move his family to the farm home in April. Music was furnished during the evening by the Bessore trio.

Plans for the couple's wedding trip were not disclosed, but it was announced that they would be at home after Feb. 14 at 368 North Townview circle.

Miss Herring, who is a member of Delta Theta Tau, attended Lucas high school and Wittenberg college at Springfield. She also attended the University of Colorado, and has been for some time a teacher at the Woodland school.

Mr. Faust, who is now with the advertising department of the Ohio Brass company, was employed for a number of years as associate editor of a McGraw-Hill publication. After graduation from a Pasadena, Calif., high school, he attended Iowa State college where he obtained his B. S. in electrical engineering. He did graduate work in journalism at Columbia university. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha, and was national president of Eta Kappa Nu, honorary electrical engineering association for two years. He is now chairman of the Mansfield division of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and was cited in 1937 as outstanding in his profession by a national society.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Faust, Dubuque, Ia.; Earl F. Theisinger, New York, N. Y.; Alton B. Zerby, Dillsburg, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Studebaker, Tippecanoe City; Miss Gertrude Stanbarger, Lloyd Yackey, Strasburg; Mr. and Mrs V C. Kenney, Olmstead Falls; Miss Virginia Edwards, Alliance, and Miss Virginia McGuire, Loudonville.

Fifty years ago today Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Adams, 60 Buckingham street, exchanged the nuptial vows in Mansfield. In honor of the occasion they were entertained yesterday at a family dinner at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Adams, 10 Dudley avenue.

Among the 23 guests were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Adams and family, Mr. and Mrs. Tulley Eller and Miss Shirley Waddington, all of Detroit. Children of the couple are Clarence, Harry and Albert Adams, Mrs Ruth Them, and Mrs. (Hazel) Eller.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52) who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Just get more fresh air, 8 hrs sleep and if you need a reliable "WOMAN'S" tonic take Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and those disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life.

Pinkham's is WELL WORTH trying.

Mother's Standby in Treating CHILDREN'S Frequent COLDS

If your children keep coming down with nasty little colds all winter, use Vicks VapoRub these three simple ways.

✓ For relieving discomforts of chest colds and night coughs, rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back at bedtime. VapoRub's poultice-vapor action relieves local congestion—eases muscular soreness or tightness—helps the youngster relax into restful sleep.

✓ For coughing and irritated throat caused by colds, put VapoRub on the child's tongue. It melts, trickles slowly down—bathes the throat with soothing medication. Then massage VapoRub on throat and chest.

✓ For "sniffles" and misery of head colds, melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Have the child breathe in the steaming vapors. This loosens phlegm, clears air-passages, makes breathing easier. Also massage VapoRub on throat and chest. Millions of families use these three time-tested ways to relieve the misery of colds.

Informally Speaking...

Monday, Feb. 6.

Lucy, dear:

All signs point to an early spring. Confirmed reports state that Mr. Groundhog didn't see his shadow, and a notice in Saturday's paper stated that 1,500,000 robins had started northward two weeks ahead of last year's schedule . . . but not until yesterday was I completely convinced of spring's proximity—when I saw a robin hopping about on the front lawn . . . a sure sign of spring if there ever was one, eh Lucy?

The A. A. U. W. dance was a huge success Saturday night, and I do wish you could have come over for it—if for nothing else than to see all the girls in their spring formals. The 85 couples who attended the affair were all pretty much on time—no doubt because of the door prize which was given away at 10:30—Virginia and Earl Clark won a gardenia corsage and matching boutonnaire.

* * * * *

BLACK and white gowns seemed to predominate at the dance . . . the full skirt of Edith Beck's white taffeta frock was sprinkled with tiny white velvet bows . . . she wore a green velvet hair bow and an old-fashioned locket on a green velvet ribbon. Margaret (Mrs. R. D.) Iden (who's just back from New York, by the way) was wearing a black crepe dress with a front panel of pleated royal blue chiffon—her satin slippers were of royal blue, too. Ruth Zelenka looked very quaint in a gown of white taffeta, which she made herself . . . the formal was cut along simple, full lines and she had her hair brushed up into soft curls. Esther (Mrs. A H) Moellenkamp had an upswept hair dress, too—topped with a cherry red ribbon. She was attired in black velvet with a low decolletage and a cherry and chartreuse girdle.

* * * * *

Barbara Chatlain and Juanita Miller had quite an exciting time last week-end . . . they went down to Springfield where they visited with their brother and cousin, Ed Chatlain. Ed's a sophomore at Wittenberg college this year and a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. The girls saw the Wittenberg-Case basketball game—Ed's on the team—and it was the seventh win of the season for Wittenberg.

* * * * *

EVERYTHING comes at once—or so it would seem, to Mim (Seaton) and Bart Herring right now. They've been waiting for some time for their new home on Linden road to be completed . . . and just when everything was in shape for them to move in, their young daughters, Barbara and Carolyn, came down with the three-day measles . . . But they're recovered now, so the Herrings plan to move into their new home early this week

* * * * *

They aren't flying down to Rio, but the Art Spreckers are taking a flying trip southward, anyway. Eloise and Art motored to Cincinnati last week-end and took a plane to Florida. They'll visit the principal cities while there and take a short trip over to Cuba.

* * * * *

I guess I didn't quite tell you the whole story about Ohio's Cape Cod settlement up at the Vermilion lagoons on Lake Erie. Since I wrote you about it last Monday, I learned that a former Mansfielder planned and laid out the lagoons for L. A. Wells. It was Mead A. Spencer—and he was also the architect for Mr. Wells' cottage and several of the other Cape Cod houses. Mr. Spencer (whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Spencer, live here at 111 Sturges avenue) is the vice president and head designer of the architectural firm, Charles Bacon Rowley and Associates in Cleveland.

* * * * *

THE stream of Mansfield vacationers still continues . . Mrs. George Bowers is down in Orlando, Fla., now . and Vincent B. Van Tilburg is on his way to California—where he'll visit in Los Angeles and San Francisco for the remainder of this month . . he went to the coast by way of Minneapolis, where he spent a few days with friends and relatives.

* * * * *

I'll write you again next Monday, Lucy, and in the meantime, keep on the lookout for more signs of spring.

Lovingly,

Marianne
